

New method of registering for draft planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Selective Service, sharply reduced in size, is busy planning its new method of registering men for the standby draft. The new method is a one-day affair each year for men who turned 18-years-old the previous year.

The date for this year's crop of 18-year-olds hasn't been set yet but it probably will be early in 1976 on a day to be announced.

Draft Director Byron V. Pepitone said he hopes to enlist thousands of volunteers to help in the registration so there will be no tedious waiting in line by the young men for the brief sign-up process.

"We hope to have enough places and enough people to make it the least onerous as possible, so a man can just pop into a place nearby that he sees every day," Pepitone said.

Many of the two million young men turning 18 this year won't have to take part, however, because they had already signed up when President Ford issued his proclamation in April changing the system.

Before then, men were required to register during the period 30 days before and 30 days after their 18th birthday. The law still requires the Selective Service to register men, although the part of the law giving the president draft authority expired in 1973.

The change to a one-day registration is largely an economy move as Selective Service continues to reduce the size of its paid force and keep volunteer draft boards on a standby basis.

When the drafting of men halted in 1973, there were 8,000 paid Selective Service workers and 2,750 administrative offices requiring a $100 million annual budget. This was in addition to 30,000 volunteers.

In the fiscal year that ended this July, the paid force was reduced to 2,400 people and 626 administrative offices with a $47.5 million budget.

Plans are to reduce these totals this year to 1,400 people, 130 offices and a $40 million budget, with more cuts next year.

The Selective Service now has a roll of 17,000 draft board members and 25,000 other volunteers to help with registration. Pepitone said he hopes this total will be larger when registration day rolls around.

Pepitone said he believes it would be a mistake to abolish the system entirely, as Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and some others want to do.

Since the president would have to go to Congress in an emergency to get his draft authority restored, Pepitone said, "We could crank up the system in 30 to 45 days, but if we had to start from scratch, it would take a minimum of six months."

The one-day registration is not entirely new. It was employed when the draft was revised before World War II and before the Korean conflict.

All's A-OK for Apollo-Soyuz trip

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Astronauts, cosmonauts, spaceships and rockets are ready for the joint U.S.-Soviet space mission that gets under way Tuesday, ending the space race that began 18 years ago with the launching of Sputnik.

Countdowns ticked away smoothly on two continents today for twin launchings that will propel the American Apollo and Russian Soyuz spacecraft into orbit for a historic linkup Thursday.

The Soyuz, guided by cosmonauts Alexei A. Leonov and Valeri N. Kubasov, will blast off at 8:20 a.m. EDT from the Baikonur Cosmodrome on the edge of a central Russian desert 1,400 miles southeast of Moscow.

Apollo astronauts Thomas P. Stafford, Vance D. Brand and Donald K. Slayton will take off from Cape Canaveral 7½ hours later at 3:50 p.m. to begin a celestial chase that will end with the two ships joined together 140 miles above West Germany at 12:15 p.m. Thursday.

It will be an emotionally charged moment, not only because of its symbolism but because the two men—both veterans of space—have become such close friends during two years of training for this mission. Both believe that moments like this, high in space, can speed detente between Soviets and Americans on earth.

Weather

Cooler today and Tuesday. Night and morning overcast, with hazy sunshine in the afternoon. High today and Tuesday about 85. Sunday's high was 84, and the low this morning was 60. Sunrise Tuesday at 5:50, sunset 8:03.

Ford feels 'about 40'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, who says "I feel about 40," observed his 62nd birthday today.

Family plans for the celebration were not announced but Press Secretary Ron Nessen said, "We can expect some sort of family birthday event."

The President was born in Omaha, Neb., on July 14, 1913.

Director admits entries began in World War II Break-ins by FBI told

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley today acknowledged that the FBI has carried out break-ins for national security investigations, beginning as early as World War II and continuing through the 1960s.

At a news conference, Kelley declined to say how many break-ins were conducted. He characterized the number as "a few" and "not many."

Kelley said that he has not been asked to authorize any break-ins since becoming FBI director two years ago. He said he would present any such requests to the attorney general and would be guided by his opinion.

"Yes, the FBI has conducted surreptitious entries in securing information related to the security of the nation," Kelley said in response to questions.

He defended the break-ins and said FBI personnel "acted in good faith" in authorizing and conducting them.

In 1966, Kelley said, "all such activity was terminated" except for break-ins considered necessary for foreign-related counter-intelligence activity.

He declined to say how many break-ins have been conducted since 1966 or whether there was a substantial reduction in the number.

The director said he could not discuss many details because he expects to testify on matters before the Senate committee investigating Central Intelligence Agency and FBI intelligence activities.

He refused to identify the targets of the break-ins but said he knows of none which were not related to national security and foreign intelligence.

"There were a few" break-ins at foreign embassies in Washington in counter-intelligence investigations after 1966, Kelley said, without identifying the embassies.

He said that he believes some of the foreign counterintelligence break-ins took place outside of Washington.

Asked whether the break-ins were carried out in conjunction with the CIA, Kelley replied, "I know of none. Subsequently there may have been information which did go to them. But we were not in partnership with the CIA."

Asked whether full details of the break-ins will be provided to the Senate committee, Kelley said, "It will be a matter which will be completely presented to the attorney general."

Full disclosure, he added, "is a question only he can answer."

The director said the Justice Department also is reviewing the break-ins to determine their legality.

Although suggesting that he might consider break-ins improper or unwise today, Kelley insisted that those who carried out the break-ins were acting for the good of the nation.

"I do not note in these activities any gross abuse of authority," he asserted. "I see a consistent thread of well-intentioned activity."

Kelley also declined to say whether he personally participated in break-ins as an FBI agent from 1940 through 1961.

READY FOR RENDEZVOUS

Astronaut Thomas P. Stafford, carrying a duffel bag, arrives at Patrick AFB, Fla., as he prepares to take a jet flight in his training Sunday for the launching of the Saturn 1B rocket Tuesday from nearby Cape Canaveral, Fla. Unidentified technician at left wears a face mask as the astronauts are in isolation. Stafford, along with astronauts Donald K. Slayton and Vance D. Brand will rendezvous with two Russians in Apollo Soyuz project.

Three hospitalized in valley assaults; others injured

Three valley men were in hospitals today as a result of gun and knife assaults over the weekend and other assaults caused lesser injuries to others.

Two men were wounded by gunfire from a moving car in Chino Sunday night and a man was stabbed three times in the stomach during a fight involving several persons in San Dimas Saturday evening.

Leonard Partida, 29, and George Yamas, 15, both of Chino, according to police, were wounded about 9 p.m. as they were walking down Fourth Street near D Street. Both Yamas and Partida suffered shoulder wounds in the incident and were admitted to Chino General Hospital where they were reported in satisfactory condition this morning.

Police said the two gunshot victims could not tell investigating officers how many men or how many cars were involved in the shooting. A few minutes after the original shooting incident a 29-year-old Ontario man was attacked by a group of men after his car went off the road at Yorba and Chino avenues.

In that incident, Gary Ramirez, 20, of Ontario, was severely beaten suffering a head laceration and numerous bruises and abrasions. He was also hospitalized, but later released.

Police said that the three victims in the incidents were uncooperative with officers attempting to determine if the incidents were related. Chino Police Lt. William Hughes said this morning that "the only thing we have now is theories. We are not certain if the incidents are related, but believe that a number of Ontario men attacked a number of Chino men and the Chino men in turn attacked an Ontario man."

Hughes said one 16-year-old Chino youth was arrested in the second incident for investigation of assault.

The victim of the San Dimas assault, Kenneth A. Lunn, 346 W. Allen Ave., was reported in serious but stable condition today in San Dimas Community Hospital.

Sheriff's deputies gave this account of the incident:

Lunn was visiting John Hamilton, 18, at 317 W. Base Line Road that evening when Hamilton went to a neighbor's to obtain some automobile tools he had loaned earlier. Hamilton was beaten up, without provocation, and returned home to tell Lunn and others visiting there about the attack.

Lunn said his companions went into the street where they were confronted by the group which had beaten Hamilton, many of whom were armed with rifles. Lunn and one of the others got into a scuffle and Lunn was stabbed.

Deputies later arrested two 16-year-old youths and booked them on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder in the stabbing. Two other youths were being sought.

65 policemen 'sick'; lie detectors likely

A number of Pomona police officers may be asked to take lie detector tests today as the city tries to break officers' "sick in" tactics in the current wage fight, city officials said today.

Police Chief F. P. Wallick reported that there were 65 sick absences by officers during the weekend. Officers failing to report for duty were replaced with other officers on an overtime basis with no dropoff in available police services.

City officials said they will decide today whether to request absent officers to take the lie detector tests.

Under an emergency ordinance approved by the Pomona City Council two weeks ago, officers taking part in contrived absences could face suspension, job termination or other disciplinary action.

The absences began Friday night when one squad of seven officers failed to report for duty. The absences spread to succeeding work shifts through the weekend.

Negotiators for the police and city are scheduled to meet Thursday with a state mediator in an attempt to settle the salary dispute, which has led to a general police slowdown since July 1.

The city's last salary offer to the Police Officers' Association was 2.5 per cent, while police are demanding 20 per cent.

According to attorney David G. Miller, chief negotiator for the city, the 20 per cent demand by police would make Pomona Police the highest paid officers in the country, with patrolman earning in excess of $18,500 per year.

Los Angeles Police last week received salary hikes to become the best paid force in the country and Miller indicated that Pomona officers are only 13 per cent behind Los Angeles officers at present.

CHP staging slowdown

Highway patrol officials conceded today that a slowdown in enforcement by patrolmen over salaries had begun, with less than a five per cent of normal number of traffic citations being issued in the valley area over the weekend.

Acting CHP commander Ken Warren of the CHP's Claremont office said only 10 tickets were issued compared with an average total of 225 for a weekend.

Local patrolmen were joining CHP officers all over the state in protest to Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s limiting wage increases to 10 per cent, after a 17½ per cent salary increase was approved by the state personnel board.

Officers in most cases issued warnings in the local area, rather than writing tickets, as a method of cutting down revenue going to cities and counties. But Warren emphasized drunk drivers and motorists with criminal violations were being arrested.

Halt urged to Army duty based on race, creed, sex

WASHINGTON (AP) — Assignment of soldiers on the basis of race, religion, ethnic extraction — or sex appeal — will be banned, if recommendations of a committee of Army generals is approved by the Secretary of the Army.

The recommendations were prepared at the request of then-Secretary of the Army Howard H. Callaway in response to concern expressed by President Ford over a long-standing policy of not assigning Jewish Army personnel to Saudi Arabia.

The committee of generals proposed discontinuing that practice, as well as one under which American soldiers of Turkish extraction are not assigned to Greece and those of Greek extraction are not assigned to Turkey.

Among the dozens of recommendations covering a broad range of problems, was one urging Army personnel officers to drop a practice that has resulted in a disproportionate number of Army men with Spanish surnames being assigned to missions in Latin America.

"This results in a host country perception that native ability to speak Spanish is the main criterion for selection and that professional qualifications are secondary," the generals said.

The generals said that "assignments should be made without regard to ethnic extraction."

They noted, however, that Saudi Arabia has historically refused to grant visas to Jews to enter its borders.

In cases of assignment of Jews to Saudi Arabia, Turkish-Americans to Greece and Greek-Americans to Turkey, however, the personnel involved would have the option "to either accept ... or decline, based on perceived ethnic bias," the generals said.

And, they said, it is time to discontinue the practice of considering looks, figure and personality when assigning women soldiers to staff jobs in the Washington area.

The generals also said senior officers no longer should be permitted to request assignment of chaplains to their commands "on the basis of denominational or racial characteristics."

And they said the Army should not go along with requests of certain colleges and universities for ROTC instructors of specific faiths, or for specific requests for black officers as professors of military science.

Homemade plane crashes; father and son are killed

FALLBROOK (AP) — A man and his son were killed when their homemade airplane crashed soon after takeoff from Fallbrook Air Park, showering debris less than 100 feet from crowded tennis courts.

Authorities identified the victims of Sunday's crash as Edward Nilson, 52, and his 19-year-old son, Edward II.

Deputy Coroner M. R. Green said the elder Nilson was piloting the aircraft, a two-seater Busby Mustang II that Nilson had assembled from a kit.

Authorities said the plane had been flown often in past air shows by the Nilsons.

Witnesses said the plane's engine sputtered soon after takeoff, sending the plane plunging into a parking lot of Fallbrook Recreation Center Tennis Club, which was staging a tournament on nearby courts.

Jack Story, a co-owner of the club, said the plane had climbed to a height of about 200 feet when its engine faltered. The aircraft crashed and skidded to within a couple of feet of two parked cars.

No other persons were injured as a result of the crash, authorities said.

Los Angeles opens Bicentennial exhibit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The city officially opens its Bicentennial celebration today with a traveling exhibit called "USA '76-The First 200 Years" and an outdoor festival.

The exhibit, held at the Space Building of the Museum of Science and Industry, features old paintings and posters telling America's story. It will run through Aug. 13.

The festival tonight will have local bands, singing groups and performers from the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus.

The city's Bicentennial Committee is a non-profit corporation with a 45-member board of directors appointed by the City Council and Mayor Tom Bradley.

It does not have money for projects but simply decides whether submitted programs from the community will be endorsed by the city. The committee's main function is to spur community action, said executive director Vee Tinnin.

BAREFOOT ON THE SAND

Former President Nixon, taking a barefoot stroll on the beach near his San Clemente home Saturday, greets Brenda Waterman of Torrance and an unidentified man. Nixon, his wife Pat, daughter Tricia and son-in-law Edward Cox strolled along the beach, signed autographs, shook hands with well-wishers and posed for photographers during hour-long walk.

Three who abandoned sinking boat rescued

LONG BEACH (AP) — Three persons who abandoned their sinking cabin cruiser have been rescued after spending two days in a lifeboat, the Coast Guard says.

The two men and a woman were found drifting in a lifeboat near Santa Barbara Sunday. They were taken to a hospital where they were reported in good condition.

They were identified as Robert Peterson of Goleta and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Pape of El Cerritos, the Coast Guard said.

A fishing vessel discovered the lifeboat Sunday afternoon about 35 miles from where their 42-foot cabin cruiser was believed to have gone down off Pt. Conception early Saturday.

It had first been believed there were four persons aboard the cruiser, whose distress call was heard Saturday by a truck driver who notified authorities. The Coast Guard found a life jacket, some boat debris and an empty life raft near Santa Barbara on Saturday, but it was not determined if the material was from the cabin cruiser.

Tunney asks women's help in passing bill

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A women's group here has been urged by Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., to press for passage of his bill to create some 500,000 part-time government jobs, many of them to be filled by women.

"We need your influence to get this bill through the House," Tunney told the group Sunday.

Attending the meeting of Mayor Tom Bradley's Advisory Committee on the Status of Women were Rep. Yvonne Burke, D-Calif., the bill's sponsor in the House.

Also present were Los Angeles City Councilman Peggy Stevenson, Board of Education member Diane Watson and Community College trustee Gwen Moore.

Tunney's bill would require federal agencies to open up to part-time workers 2 per cent of full-time positions over the next five years.

30 persons arrested

SAN JUAN BAUTISTA (AP) — At least 30 persons were jailed in the aftermath of a rodeo celebration that turned into a bottle-throwing free-for-all in this small agricultural town, the sheriff's department reported.

San Benito County under-sheriff Leonard Gomes said about 500 persons were involved in the "near-riot" Sunday during celebration of the San Juan Bautista Festival

Rodeo. Four officers were slightly hurt.

He said trouble started after celebrants began drinking. They were charged with disturbing the peace and failure to disperse.

Gomes said San Benito and Monterey county sheriffs deputies using bullhorns assisted Hollister and San Juan Bautista police in quelling the disturbance with tear gas.

No new 'violent' names

LOS ANGELES (AP) — No new names have been added to a police list of potentially violent black juveniles since public disclosure of the project eight months ago, and officials say agencies using the file have lost interest in it.

Inactivity of the so-called Alpha File generally coincides with public disclosure of the list and an American Civil Liberties Union suit filed in federal court seeking to have the files declared unconstitutional.

Deputy Police Chief Eldred

Lembke said as a result of publicity about the file last year, agencies using it lost interest and the department decided not to add new names. No decision has been made about renewing the project, even if the department is successful in the court case, Lembke said.

"It may just be allowed to die a natural death," he said.

The list carried names of violence-prone juveniles submitted by various agencies, such as the school district, park department and housing authority.

Just like the wedding

Divorce another happy affair

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Their wedding was a happy affair, and 15 months later the Smiths invited all the guests back for another party. Champagne was served, the best man removed the wedding bands and everyone cheered the divorce.

"We planned the divorce party to show our friends that Mari and I are not mad at each other," said Ed Smith, 44.

"Ed and I are still buddies," agreed Mari, 24. "Ed's awfully nice, but we just couldn't stand living together."

The same friends who had celebrated the wedding returned for the divorce party; the original best man slipped off the rings. The champagne had been a wedding gift. After the ceremony, they hugged each other. She called him "honey" and he called her "babe."

"Everybody thinks that divorce is some kind of a terrible thing, like a funeral, but if two people are not getting along it is good to find out quickly," Mari said. "Then it's nice to celebrate."

Mari said Saturday's party was Ed's idea.

"I first thought he was a smart alec and then I realized he was being cooperative. My husband amazes me. He's very ingenious."

The divorce invitations said, "You are cordially invited to join us in celebrating our divorce." One guest even brought a gift — pink roses like the ones Mari carried at the wedding.

"I told our friends I could wrap and return their wedding gifts but nobody accepted my offer," Mari said.

The Smiths said they rejected a suggestion they throw rice at the guests.

In keeping with the spirit of things, the couple worked together on their divorce.

"The how-to-do-it book cost us $5 and the court costs are $55 and then that's it," Mari said.

Crocker hours irks employees

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—It's too soon to tell whether Crocker National Bank's new, longer hours have attracted new business, but they have drawn some gripes from employees unhappy with staggered hours, bank officials say.

Last March 10, the San Francisco-based bank began an 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. schedule at all 360 of its branches in the state. Major banks usually operate from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The Crocker plan was implemented without hiring new employees or incurring overtime payments because bank employees usually work from 8:15 a.m. to 5:15 p.m. and officials simply staggered their working hours.

"We think it's still a little early to see any impact on attracting new customers. We just don't have any real feel for it yet," said a spokesman for the bank.

The spokesman said the longer hours were introduced as part of the bank's desire "to make banking more responsive to the needs of our customers."

The manager of a downtown San Francisco branch said some of his employees are displeased with their new hours, but a larger number are enthusiastic about "making their customers happy."

A Crocker teller at one downtown Los Angeles branch said, "I don't like it. It's messed up my car pool and I can't eat lunch with my friends."

The lukewarm results of the Crocker plan in attracting new business are not likely to make other banks follow suit.

Albert J. Clemens, vice president for marketing at Security Pacific National Bank, said his bank won't expand banking hours unless Crocker starts drawing away Security Pacific depositors.

"We have done in-depth studies (on Crocker's new hours) and have not found any loss of business from our bank or any other California bank," said Clemens. "Crocker has put together a well-planned and well-executed marketing program, but I question its success."

Radiation

BERKELEY (AP)—Authorities are searching for Leon Galabow, identified as the tenant of a house which was found to be contaminated by radiation and stocked with dangerous chemicals. Chief Fire Officer Richard Hallberg said Sunday lead shielding, radiation warnings and more than 50 different kinds of chemicals were found in Galabow's house, which was searched after a woman who had subleased it for the summer called the Fire Department to complain that she smelled a strange odor and her eyes were irritated.

Wedding fight

REDLANDS (AP) — Seven persons, including two police officers, have been injured in fighting that marred a wedding reception.

Police said the fighting erupted during the reception Saturday night at St. Mary's Catholic Church when about a dozen persons armed with baseball bats, knives and sticks forced their way into a reception hall and attacked the guests.

Arthur Horta, 33, underwent surgery for knife wounds he suffered in the incident. Police said four persons were taken into custody.

Patty Hearst

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Controversial sports figure Jack Scott confirmed he had met last Friday night in San Francisco with the parents of fugitive heiress Patricia Hearst, but he denied offering to make a public appeal to Miss Hearst to surrender if her mother, Catherine Hearst, resigned her seat on the University of California Board of Regents.

"Under no circumstances would I make any pleas to Patty at the request of the Hearsts," the Los Angeles Times today quoted Scott as saying. Scott and his wife, Micki, rented a Pennsylvania farm house last summer which authorities believe was used as a hideout by Miss Hearst.

Reform of FDA

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., has urged a reform of the Food and Drug Administration, saying many FDA officials have backgrounds in the industries they are supposed to be regulating.

Hartke told the National Nutritional Foods Association convention Sunday that President Ford appoints officials to the FDA and he urged Ford to give greater scrutiny to those named to regulatory posts.

"There's concrete evidence that many of the top people in the FDA are people who have come out of the very industry that they're supposed to be regulating," Hartke said. "And these individuals who leave the FDA and go to high-paying positions in the very industry they've been regulating are in a cozy relationship, which isn't in the best interests of the people."

Food stamps

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The outgoing county grand jury wants the federal food stamp program abolished because of its "built-in risk of criminality abuse" and the money for food included, instead, in regular welfare checks. In a report to the Los Angeles Board of Supervisors released today, the jurors said despite the argument that food stamps deny the recipient the possibility of squandering public money of alcohol and tobacco, the grand jury's investigation "reveals this to be untrue since there is a black market in food stamps for those recipients who choose to abuse the program."

Sabotage

OXNARD (AP)—United Farm Workers of America leader Cesar Chavez said California growers and Teamsters Union officials met last week in the Los Angeles suburb of Inglewood to make plans to sabotage the state's new farm labor law, which goes into effect next month.

Chavez, who spent the 13th day of his 1,000-mile march to publicize the farm labor act, told reporters here Sunday that the two groups were attempting to "subvert the will of the people of California" by encouraging farm workers to affiliate with the Teamsters before the new law mandating union representation elections become effective.

Landmark burns

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The Octagon House," a landmark Malibu home considered an architectural gem, has been destroyed in a fire, authorities say.

There were no injuries in the blaze early Sunday, which fire officials said caused an estimated $200,000 damage.

An electrical short may have started the blaze that gutted the eight-sided, weathered gray structure, they said.

Jerry Schneider, 40, who was renting the home, told authorities he discovered the fire in a hallway when he arrived home shortly after midnight.

Suspicious fire

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) — A fire of suspicious origin has gutted part of a commercial-office building complex under construction, authorities say.

The blaze Sunday gutted a portion of the project that was to have been a drug store, firemen said, but a two-story office section was saved. There was no immediate estimate of damages.

"A fire like this just doesn't start by itself," said Battalion Chief George Shepperd. "It got too good a start at this time of day."

Detente hurts Russ people: Solzhenitsyn

NEW YORK (AP) — Exiled Russian author Alexander Solzhenitsyn says American eagerness for detente with the Soviet Union may hurt the cause of freedom in his native land.

Asserting that "the liberation of the human spirit from the rubbish of Communism has absolutely no connection with detente," the 1970 Nobel laureate for literature cautioned that, "You, perhaps accidentally, are not helping us toward liberation, but helping bury us in the ground."

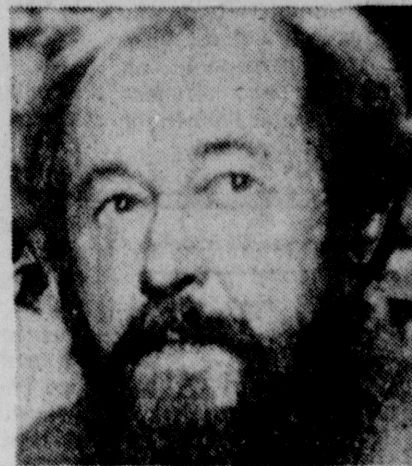

Solzhenitsyn spoke Sunday on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press" in a studio near St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Cathedral where a special mass was being said to mark the opening of "Captive Nations Week." The week commemorates the fall of 29 nations to Soviet dominance. After the mass, a rain-soaked Central Park gathering of 150 persons heard Solzhenitsyn announce that he had written an open letter to Soviet leaders calling on them to withdraw from "occupied territories." He said he wanted "to try to liberate them from captivity to Marxism."

The writer again cautioned against arms agreements, now being negotiated between the United States and the Soviets, on the ground the Russians would cheat.

"Their whole spirit is to prevent verification," he said. A pact would "not be guaranteed by anything but the smiles on their faces."

Solzhenitsyn is scheduled to be the guest Tuesday of the Senate "which has shown me every consideration." The writer had appeared upset by the failure of President Ford to receive him in Washington, but the White House let it be known Saturday that Solzhenitsyn would be welcome. Solzhenitsyn refused to say whether he is scheduled to meet Ford.

Colonel whisked into seclusion

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — The U.S. Army kept Col. Ernest R. Morgan under wraps today following his release by leftist kidnapers in Beirut and his return to Turkey.

Morgan, 43, of Petersburg, Va., was rushed off to a secret destination Sunday. American officials said all information about his case was "classified."

Apparently the colonel's wife and children were with him. Neighbors said they left the family's apartment several days ago, and no one answered the bell.

Morgan, a member of the U.S. military aid mission in Turkey, was kidnaped on June 29 when he stopped for the night in Beirut on his way back from a meeting in Pakistan. He was taken from a taxicab when he went to the airport to buy some magazines at the height of street fighting between leftist Moslems and rightist Christians.

The colonel's captors identified themselves as the Revolutionary Socialist Action Group, a previously unknown organization, but the Palestine Liberation Organization charged that he was taken prisoner by the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command, a more radical group than the PLO.

Morgan was released Saturday after the Lebanese government complied with the kidnapers' demand for the distribution of food, clothing and building materials to a Moslem slum district that was badly damaged during the street fighting.

The colonel was given a checkup at the American University hospital in Beirut, talked with Lebanese security officials and U.S. Ambassador McMurtrie Godley and spent the night at the hospital.

Appearing before newsmen Sunday before leaving the Lebanese capital, he read a statement, appeared in good condition and refused to answer any questions.

"I think you all know that my mother and others in the United States offered prayers for my safe return," he said. "There were many groups who made personal appeals, and I may add these had a profound effect on the people who were controlling me."

Morgan, who is black, was referring to appeals from black American organizations.

He said his release was also the result of the combined efforts of the Lebanese government and the U.S. government to at least save a life, one life, my life."

He added that "world opinion and public opinion did a lot to help" the kidnapers "make the right decision and free me. ... All is well that ends well."

outside a Protestant club, and a companion was wounded.

British troops killed a 16-year-old Catholic and seriously wounded his companion after their car failed to stop at a checkpoint, and one of the youths fired on the soldiers, the army reported.

The three deaths raised the confirmed death toll in nearly six years of Protestant-Catholic warfare to 1,251.

Speakers at the Orange celebrations Saturday again rejected British plans for political cooperation between Northern Ireland's Protestants and Catholics.

Burglary haul totals $2,000

Burglars broke into a home owned by Robert Reed, 1175 N. Euclid Avenue in Upland, Sunday and made off with 14-inch portable color television set and jewelry with a total value of $2,000, Upland police reported.

The police were called to the Reed residence after a neighbor noticed the home had been broken into. Reed said the television set was made by Sony and has a serial number of 500467.

Kidnaped in Tanzania

Garden Grove man may be freed

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — A Stanford University student kidnaped by Zairean revolutionaries almost two months ago will apparently be released soon, it was learned today.

A statement by two young women who were kidnaped with 22-year-old Stephen Smith of Garden Grove, Calif., from an animal research station on the shores of Lake Tanganyika, said a letter from Smith to U.S. Ambassador Beverley Carter in Dar Es Salaam announced the pending release.

The two women were released about two weeks ago in good health, bringing with them the demands for the release of Smith.

The statement appeared to conform an earlier announcement from the guerrillas of a movement called the People's Revolutionary Party of the Congo, who said they will release Smith within 60 days if their demands are met. Officials declined to say what these demands were.

Carrie Jane Hunter of Atherton, Calif., and Emilie Bergmann from the Netherlands said in their statement, "We are very much encouraged to see that the PRP is now in the process of fulfilling its commitment to release Steve in the very near future."

Foreign car 'dumping' probe

DETROIT (AP) — The U.S. Treasury Department may launch a formal probe into charges that foreign auto makers are selling cars in this country at illegally low prices.

Imports took a record 20 per cent share of the slack domestic market in the first six months of the year.

Federal law bars foreign makers from selling a product in the United States at a price lower than it is sold in the home country if the practice — known as "dumping" — damages U.S. industry.

Peter O. Suchman, deputy assistant secretary of tariff affairs in the Treasury Department, said the probe is being undertaken in response to a request from Rep. John H. Dent, D-Pa., chairman of the House labor standards subcommittee.

"We have received what we consider to be a valid petition for an inquiry and we now have 30 days to determine if we should start a formal investigation," Suchman said.

Dent's latest petition alleges dumping by firms in Canada, Japan, Great Britain, Italy, Sweden, Germany and France, according to his research aide, Julie Domenick. Details were not released.

Uncover new IRA terrorist plan

LONDON (AP) — British police have uncovered a plan by the Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing for another bomb blitz in Britain and the assassination of Britons if the Provos' cease-fire in Northern Ireland breaks down, British and Irish newspapers report.

The Dublin Sunday Press said that the partly burned documents found in a raid in Liverpool described an IRA plan to set bombs in London and cities in the English Midlands if full-scale warfare resumes in Northern Ireland.

The London Sun said the British police have details of IRA plans to shoot British judges and policemen. It suggested that the guerrilla army might have been responsible for the shooting of seven policemen in English cities since Christmas. The paper also said a buildup for the planned violence in Britain has been going on for months.

The raid in Liverpool last week netted IRA gunman Sean Kinsella, who escaped from a jail outside Dublin with 18 other IRA last August. The Liverpool police said they also found the biggest IRA cache of arms and explosives ever uncovered in Britain.

Two Protestants and a Roman Catholic were shot to death in Belfast Saturday and Sunday as the Protestant Orange Order held its annual marches in celebration of the Protestant victory of the Battle of the Boyne in 1690. But there were no clashes.

One 20-year-old Protestant's bound, gagged body was found in a suburban lane. "We suspect he was shot by his own people for violating their code," said a police source.

A 21-year-old Protestant was shot at close range and killed by two men

Science solves ancient salmon kill mystery

VERNITA, Wash. (AP) — An archaeologist says recent diggings indicate that the eruption of Mt. Mazama about 6,000 years ago not only led to the creation of Crater Lake, but also decimated salmon runs in the Pacific Northwest for centuries afterward.

Dr. David G. Rice of the University of Idaho says evidence uncovered in a recent project at the northwest corner of the Hanford Atomic Reservation indicate that Indians living in the area 4,000 to 6,000 years ago were primarily big-game hunters and made almost no use of salmon.

Other archaeological work in that region, however, has shown that Indian cultures made extensive use of salmon earlier than 6,000 years ago and again from 4,000 years ago up to modern times.

"The Mazama ash might be an explanation," Rice says. Mt. Mazama was a 14,000-foot volcanic peak in southern Oregon which literally blew its top. The inside of the mountain later filled with water and became known as Crater Lake, with walls rising to about 8,000 feet above sea level.

Volcanic ash from the cataclysmic eruption was scattered over most of Oregon, Washington, and Idaho, as well as parts of Montana, Nevada, California and British Columbia. It shows up today in road cuts and river banks as a layer of grey-white in the rock strata.

Rice said the ash, which amounted to several feet in some places, brought increased sediment and temperature changes to most Northwest rivers and streams for 30-40 years and affected salmon runs so drastically that it was not until many centuries later that the Indians could depend on the fish for food.

Supporting the hypothesis, Rice said, is evidence from another site he excavated at Kettle Falls on the upper Columbia River.

The archaeologist said evidence indicated a thriving salmon fishery there from about 9,000 years ago to more recent times, with a break from about 5,000-6,000 years ago during which the site does not appear to have been occupied at all.

Rice described the site as a rocky island in the midst of a dangerous rapids — a place where the only logical reason for the Indians to be there would have been to catch fish.

The Hanford dig, near the Vernita Bridge on Washington 24, was funded by a $2,800 grant from the Energy Research and Development Administration. Assisting Rice were volunteers from the Mid-Columbia Archaeological Society.

Benefit show for dead hero falls short

LAS VEGAS (AP) — A marathon benefit to raise money for the family of a Utah truck driver killed while trying to aid a Nevada Highway Patrolman fell far short of its goal, but has been termed a success despite the absence of the headlined entertainers.

"It was one of the most beautiful things I've ever seen in my life. It was pretty touching out there," Derrell Hallenbeck, chairman of the show, said Sunday.

The 10-hour benefit was staged for the family of Glenn Goss, 49, of Tremonton, Utah, who was shot to death Memorial Day as he tried to aid the highway patrolman scuffling with a motorist he had stopped. Las Vegas Strip entertainers Glen Campbell and Wayne Newton had been scheduled to appear, Hallenbeck said, but failed to show up.

Lucille Goss, widow of the slain trucker, was presented a $53,000 check by Nevada Lt. Gov. Robert Rose. The funds were raised by the Nevada Highway Patrol because Goss had no insurance.

Hallenbeck said the benefit raised about $7,000, far short of the $50,000 target.

Mrs. Goss, presented a citation from President Ford, entered the room at the Sahara Hotel escorted by representatives of all Las Vegas-area law enforcement agencies. "She had tears in her eyes, but she held up very well," Hallenbeck said.

The presidential citation honored her husband for "exceptional service to others in the finest American tradition."

A representative of the Los Angeles Police Department presented her with $1,400 raised by its officers. Las Vegas Mayor Bill Braire and other local officials also attended.

Country and western singers Jimmie Rodgers, Tex Williams, Wynn Stewart and Red Simpson entertained. At midnight, a "Grand Ol' Opry thing," as Hallenbeck called it, closed the program with all the entertainers on stage.

Hallenbeck, vice president of the Fraternal Order of Police Associates, said he hoped the event would help spread the word of what Goss had done to help an officer in distress.

Syria vs. Iraq

Water issue rubs Arab unity thin

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

A scorching sun blisters the fabled land this time of year and now is heating up a water dispute that threatens incalculable consequences for the Arab world.

The dispute involves Arab Iraq's claim that Arab Syria is deliberately using a huge Euphrates River dam to deprive Iraqi farmers of their rightful share of the waters.

This is only part of a complex of quarrels in an area whose complexity is legendary. Complication piles on complication and produces a tangle of ironies and a situation that has other Arabs worriedly — but thus far futilely — trying to mediate.

In this case, the water dispute is aggravated by ideological quarrels, territorial clashes and Arab suspicion of brother Arab, all at a time when Arabs fervently proclaim their "unity" against the common enemy, Israel.

The situation has even produced an Iraqi threat to bomb the new Syrian dam. If that happened, the attack would be mounted with Soviet-supplied weapons against a Soviet-built dam defended by Soviet-supplied weapons.

Oddly, too, while Arab Iraqis are quarreling with Arab Syrians, Iraq can talk with non-Arab Turks about prospective future use of Euphrates waters.

The Euphrates rises in Turkey, flows through northeast Syria and across Iraq, joining the Tigris to form the Shatt al Arab that is shared with Iran and empties into the Persian Gulf.

Iraq, once known as Mesopotamia, or land between rivers, was the scene of the biblical story of Noah and the flood, the site of such Old Testament places as Babylon, Nineveh and Ur. Under Moslem rule, Baghdad, on the west bank of the Tigris, was known as Medinetes-Salaam, or city of peace, capital of the fabled Harun al Rashid.

Today, the river waters are of enormous importance to Iraq, a nation of more than 10 million heavily dependent on irrigation. A bit bigger than California, on about the same latitude as Charleston, S.C., it has a climate like that of southern Arizona. It has almost no rain from May to October, when intense dry heat often rises above 125 Fahrenheit.

But neighboring Syria, about the size of North Dakota and with 6 million people, will be more dependent than ever on the Euphrates now.

For centuries floods ravaged northeast Syria in spring and droughts parched it in summer when the River dried to a trickle. Last year the giant Taqba dam, a Soviet aid project, was completed across the Euphrates valley, 300 miles from Damascus. It is second in the Middle East only to Egypt's Aswan. A reservoir stretching 50 miles behind it is intended to irrigate 50 million acres of semi-arid land and change Syria from net importer to net exporter of food. Electric power output will be doubled.

Turkey, too, has a major Euphrates dam and plans to start building another for a new hydroelectric project. Turkey and Iraq are now negotiating about possible effects on Iraq with respect to water distribution after completion of the dam in about

Joyce Brothers A special child

Dear Dr. Brothers: We have three normal, intelligent children and one mentally retarded son. Both my wife and I have reached into our souls to try to find out if, in some way, we were being punished. For some months after the doctor told us our son was retarded, my wife seriously believed that the child's lack of mental capacity was all my fault because I once had an extramarital affair with an alcoholic woman my wife loathed. Then, the following year, she decided that it was really her fault and that she was being punished for having left the church. Now, she seems to have finally accepted the possibility that neither one of us is guilty or responsible for this situation. We are now both closer to each other than we have been for many years.

We have a worry, however, that because we keep this child at home, we may be placing an unfair burden on the other children. Neither of us wants to be less than fair to the others and we want them to have all the advantages of life that we can possibly give them. On the other hand, we both love this special son and we'd hate to have him live away from us. — S.T.

Dear S.T.: Having a retarded child does not have to be the terrible tragedy that it has often been considered.

If the home situation is handled properly, brothers and sisters can actually benefit from sharing their home with a handicapped sibling. They can learn compassion, tolerance and understanding. It's important for all children to learn to accept differences and to see that one can be imperfect and still be loved and respected.

A clinical psychologist and associate professor of psychology at Boston University, Dr. Frances Kaplan Grossman, conducted a study of 83 college students, each of whom had a retarded brother or sister. They found some had been harmed and some had benefited from the experience. Those who had benefited appeared to be not only more tolerant and understanding of others, but they were much more aware of prejudice than those students in the control group. Those who had been harmed manifested bitter resentment, guilt, and fear that they themselves might be defective.

Dr. Grossman has described this study in full in a book, "Brothers and Sisters of Retarded Children." (Syracuse Univ. Press) You and your wife, and perhaps your children, might be interested in reading this book. She observed that the children who had been harmed by this situation often felt they had been deprived of attention that they needed to develop, simply because so much family time and energy had been given to the handicapped child.

It is not unusual for parents to view the birth of a handicapped child as a punishment. If a man or woman has been suffering from guilt feelings that stem from his own unconscious conflicts, or which are due to actions for which he hasn't yet atoned in accordance with his own moral codes, the punishment reaction will naturally be much more severe than in the individual who is relatively free of irrational and essentially childish guilt.

The fact that you and your wife have been brought closer together through this child speaks well for your marriage and your adjustment. When there are feelings of guilt, it is important to get at the roots of these feelings and to separate them from the child as there is no relation whatsoever. If the guilts are not uncovered and dealt with both the parents and the child will continue to suffer needlessly. The child and all the children in the family will suffer until the parents make a healthy adjustment. The presence of a retarded child can help a family to grow and develop together.

Prevention

Does Vitamin C really prevent colds? Recent studies indicate that Vitamin C may appear to lessen the severity or symptoms of a cold, since it acts like an antihistamine in that it has a drying effect, but it has not been shown to prevent or reduce the frequency of colds. Also, most authorities do not approve of taking massive doses of Vitamin C since the excess amounts must be excreted in the urine and can sometimes result in the formation of kidney stones.

Clues still being sifted in family murder case

MEDFORD, Ore. (AP) — Quietly, and without fanfare, investigators here continue to pore over clues in the Cowden family murder case, one of the more bizarre multiple homicides in Oregon history.

It will be a year ago this Sept. 1 when Richard Cowden, his wife, Belinda, and two small children vanished from their campsite near the town of Copper in Southern Oregon's Siskiyou Mountains.

The four bodies were found by prospectors last April 12, eight months after the family vanished.

Lt. Mark Kezar of the Oregon state Police has coordinated the investigation, which he says remains very much active.

"The whole nature of the thing smacks of a wierdo," he said recently, adding that the police know a lot they don't feel free to discuss at this point.

Cowden, then 28, was a log truck driver from White City, Ore. He had taken his family camping in the Siskiyou over Labor Day. He had planned to work around his house, but plans to borrow a truck he needed had fallen through.

So they went camping, and on Sunday, Sept. 1, Cowden and son David, 5, went from the camp to Copper to buy milk. It was 9 a.m.

None of the family was reported alive again. A massive search for miles around the campsite turned up nothing, although it is now known that searchers were as near as 100 feet from the small cave into which the bodies of the family had been crammed.

Lt. Kezar said an extensive investigation has put together this chronology:

Cowden returned with David to the camp, and the family went swimming in adjacent Carberry Creek later that morning.

A short time later, probably before noon, the family was abducted, probably at gunpoint, and most likely by somebody they did not know.

Kezar surmises they were driven some distance away, forced up the steep slope where they were found, and at least three of them were shot.

Medical authorities have been unable to determine how Richard Cowden died. "It's a presumed homicide," said Dr. William Brady, state medical examiner. "I'm sure he was shot, even though we can't prove it."

The skeletal remains of Cowden were found on a steep hillside. The bodies of the other three were placed in the small cave, and the entrance was sealed with rocks to disguise it and hide the bodies.

"We're sort of settled on our own ideas," Kezar said. "Whether it's enough to go to a grand jury with is another matter."

Cowden's father, who committed suicide some months after the family vanished, has been cleared, Kezar said.

"You have to remember, it was summer and there were all sorts of people in that area — so-called hippie types, a motorcycle group, and so on."

He said the time lapse between the murders and discovery of the bodies has hobbled the investigation but that some evidence still is being evaluated by his office, the FBI and others.

The file on the case long ago outgrew its folder and now overflows a large cardboard box.

It includes hundreds of letters, some from mystics, some from people who solved the mystery in a dream, and many more from people with a hunch or an idea that might have been overlooked.

But Kezar says none has shed any light on the case, which he hints may be but a small but vital link from being solved.

LONELY TOURISTS — An empty luxury hotel, a converted coastal fortress, and an almost deserted beach 25 miles northwest of Lisbon on the Atlantic coast at the height of the ## HEALTH NEWS . . .

Habitual Arm Shoulder Pain Can Be Neuritis

By Dr. W. P. Helzer, D.C.

It is a common occurrence in chiropractic offices to have some new patient say, "doctor, my shoulder and arm have been paining me for seven or eight months.

Our family physician has taken x-rays and says there is no arthritis or bursitis.

He feels it is neuritis. I cannot put my arm behind my back. I cannot raise it to comb my hair. I can only do a limited part of my work and that with great discomfort. I am constantly taking sedatives. I have not had a night of natural sleep since it first started to pain me. I have had shots. I have had heat and light treatments. I have used different liniments. But nothing seems to make any headway against this constant suffering.

Why do so many neuritis sufferers delay seeking Chiropractic treatment? Is it because they cannot understand the relationship between the spinal column and the pain in the arm?

If so, we can only restate the fact that nerves which extend into the shoulder and arm have their origin in the spinal cord and pass through openings between the bones of the spinal column. The same anatomical facts apply to other places where neuritis is prevalent, such as the nerves that extend tend between the ribs, nerves that extend up over the back of the scalp or even into the legs.

Is this delay because they do not remember having injured the spinal column?

If so, it cannot be emphasized too much that spinal distortions do not always come from a single, traceable injury such as a fall, a lifting strain or collision. Oftentimes, when a Doctor of Chiropractic shows a patient an x-ray of the patient's spinal column and points out the spinal deviations which the x-ray reveals, the patient will ask, "How could that happen? I don't remember even having strained my back."

Many of the reasons could be summed up in one word, "HABIT". For the person who does considerable driving each day it might be the habit of resting an arm on the car door. For the person who works in the factory it could be the position in which he works at his machine day after day.

The nerves in which neuritis most frequently occurs are so closely related to the spinal column and the probabilities for disturbance of the spinal column to occur are so great that the thought of neuritis should immediately bring thoughts of the spinal column.

A.L. turns to Vida Blue for help

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The last time the American League won an All-Star Game was in 1971 when rookie Vida Blue was the starting and winning pitcher.

Blue, who went on to win the Cy Young and most Valuable Player awards that year, is being counted on to help get the American League back on the winning track Tuesday night at the 46th All-Star Game at County Stadium.

AL Manager Alvin Dark, who also manages Blue with the world champion Oakland A's, last week named the 25-year-old left-hander to oppose the National League, winner of 11 of the last 12 of these mid-season classics.

Walter Alston, manager of the National League, also was expected to choose a southpaw starting pitcher—John Matlack of the New York Mets—at today's news conference to give the starting line-ups. Matlack last pitched Friday and is known to be highly regarded by Alston, whose own Andy Messersmith—pitched Sunday—and Don Sutton—groin injury—aren't ready.

While Blue has a 12-7 record with a 3.10 earned run average this year, Matlack is 10-7 with a 3.54 ERA, highest of all All-Star pitchers.

When Blue gained the All-Star victory in 1971 despite giving up three runs in three innings, he got three two-run homers in a 6-4 victory. Harmon Killebrew, Frank Robinson and Reggie Jackson smashed those homers for the AL. Only Jackson, who put his blast over the roof at Detroit, in a pinchhit effort, is a member of this year's AL All-Stars.

He finished second in the voting for an outfield berth in a nationwide voting of fans. Bobby Bonds of the New York Yankees, an All-Star in 1971 and 1973 for the National League, and Joe Rudi of Oakland are the junior circuit's other outfield starters.

Two other Oakland players, first baseman Gene Tenace and shortstop Bert Campaneris, also will be in the starting lineup. The Yankees have two other starters in catcher Thurman Munson and third baseman Graig Nettles. Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins, the AL's leading hitter and winner of three straight AL batting crowns, is the second baseman.

Alston will have three of his Dodgers in the starting lineup—first baseman Steve Garvey, MVP of the 1974 All-Star game, third baseman Ron Cey and outfielder Jimmy Wynn.

Three Cincinnati Reds are on the starting squad, catcher Johnny Bench, second baseman Joe Morgan, shortstop Dave Concepcion and outfielder Pete Rose. Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals is the other outfielder.

Added to the AL reserve squad Sunday was infielder Toby Harrah of Texas, who replaces the injured Jorge Orta of the Chicago White Sox.

Henry Kissinger, Secretary of State, will throw out the first ball.

THE CHASE

Jerry Remy of the Angels (white) is chased back towards third base by Cleveland's John Ellis in rundown. Halos' Dave Collins (28) already at third. Indians won by 8-7 score.

Sun faces big three at Big A

ANAHEIM (AP) — Larry Csonka, Jim Kwik and Paul Warfield.

World Football League fans will tell you that trio is the Memphis Southmen. Perhaps they forgot about John Huarte and Ed Marshall.

Huarte, the former Notre Dame quarterback won the Heisman Trophy in college and tonight he'll be Memphis' starting quarterback when the Southmen take on the Southern California Sun in a WFL exhibition game. Marshall was one of pro football's top pass catchers last year.

Since Csonka, Warfield and Kwik have already proven themselves in the rival National Football League, most folks already concede that Memphis will win the WFL championship this year. The club was 17-3 last year and figures to be much improved.

"They are the class of the league," said Sun Coach Tom Fears. "Memphis had a devastating attack last year and they should be a lot better this year."

But the quarterback, Huarte, and the receiver, Marshall, are key men in Memphis' plans for World domination.

Last year Huarte completed 154 of 296 passes for 2,416 yards. Marshall caught 60 passes for 1,159 yards, an average of 19.3 yards per catch. He was also pro football's top touchdown-making receiver in 1974 with 19 catches for scores.

The Big Three make their WFL debuts tonight against Southern Cal, the winner of the Western Division last year.

The Sun rallied in the final four minutes last week to defeat San Antonio 36-31. Daryle Lamonia will again start at quarterback for Southern California and play only the first half. Last week he completed eight of 13 passes for 105 yards and a touchdown.

He'll be spelled by former Fullerton State star Mike Ernst.

Anthony Davis, who made his first pro start in the San Antonio game gaining 62 yards in 16 carries, is healthy again after sustaining a minor injury.

The preseason game is scheduled to start at 7:30 p.m. PDT at Anaheim Stadium.

Team continues to lose at home

Angels can use a break

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

ANAHEIM — The Angels can use the All-Star-game break to heal their wounded pride and try to find a solution to one or more of four major problem areas.

An 8-7 loss to Cleveland Sunday extended the current losing string to four straight, made it 12 out of 13 at the Big A and 13 in a row to the Indians at the Big A.

"You can't do much when you leave a ton of runners on base and don't get any relief pitching," said manager Dick Williams pointing up two of the problem areas.

The sore spots are:

(1) The club, supposedly tailored for Anaheim Stadium, can't win there. The Halos are 18-30 at home and 22-21 on the road.

(2) The team, made up of singles

Intrepid Hero captures title at Hollypark

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — One victorious son of Forli decided to skip the race so another came out and won it—the $150,000 Hollywood Derby.

Intrepid Hero never had raced in the West and his net earnings stood at \$33,110, but he added \$90,000 to that by beating the favored Terete by  $\frac{3}{4}$  of a length in the  $1\frac{1}{2}$ -mile test over the grass.

On June 29, in the $119,800 swaps stakes, Forceten upset the favored Avatar in the first of these two Hollywood Park races for 3-year-olds. And Forceten was a son of Forli, but he skipped the Derby to go East and campaign in New York.

So it was Intrepid Hero who pulled the upset Sunday paying $17.40, $6 and $3.40. He and Forceten had another thing in common—Don Pierce was in the saddle.

The horses did have different fathers, however. Intrepid Hero was sired by Bold Princess while Forceten was fathered by She's Beautiful.

Dave Lopes of the Los Angeles Dodgers tied a 70-year-old National League record in 1974 when he stole five bases in a game against the St. Louis Cardinals.

Lou Brock, who stole 118 games for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1974, had 26 games in which he stole two bases.

Purdue's football team opens the 1975 season at Northwestern on Sept. 13.

Ken Willard led active rushers in the National Football Conference of the NFL with 6,105 yards for 10 seasons.

hitters, has a terrible time getting any kind of a hit or even a sacrifice fly with runners in scoring position.

(3) The relief pitching is as bad as last year despite the development of Don Kirkwood. The starting pitching, called the best in baseball by Williams before the season started, has been weaker than last year. The staff earned run average is 3.85 and climbing.

(4) The defense, which was also supposed to be one of the staples this year, has been erratic. There have been 107 errors in 91 games.

The Angels played errorless ball Sunday, but the relief pitching was as bad as it ever has been. Although scoring seven runs, the Halos blew countless scoring opportunities. They got 10 hits and Tribe hurlers dished up 11 walks. But the Angels left 13 runners stranded.

Two of the runs came on bases-loaded walks in two different innings, the third and the seventh. Each time the following batter, or batters made unproductive outs.

In the third inning with two runs in, the bases still loaded and only one out, pinch-hitter Mickey Rivers swung at the first pitch and lined out. The next batter, Ellie Rodriguez, struck out.

In the seventh, the Halos scored a run on four walks, but Mike Miley flew out. However, Miley cracked a three-run homer, his first in the major leagues, in the ninth.

The other run came in the first inning on three singles. But with two on and only one out, Dave Chalk hit into an inning-ending double play.

Frank Tanana started and looked unbeatable for five innings. The young lefthander gave up only one hit and faced the minimum 15 batters. The one base runner, Buddy Bell, was erased in a double play.

But in the sixth, the Indians got a run on a double and two singles and in the seventh the roof fell in.

The Tribe scored five runs on five hits. Tanana departed with one out and two men on. Kirkwood (2-4) was summoned and even he was unable to put out the fire giving up a two-run single, a walk and a sacrifice. The two runs hung him with the loss.

Mike Scott came in and was tagged for an infield hit and a double by Bell before retiring Rick Manning to end the inning. Kirkwood was charged with two earned runs in one third of an inning and Scott one in one third.

Bill Singer hurled the eighth and ninth innings and was tagged for two runs on three hits in the eighth.

A former problem surfaced again in the seventh and eighth. On the two-run single allowed by Kirkwood (to pinch hitter Boog Powell) in the seventh, Rivers nonchalantly fielded the ball in short center and flipped it in to second allowing the second run to score uncontested. It shouldn't have been a two-run single.

Dodgers now trail by 12½ after 2-1 loss

ST. LOUIS (AP)—All-Star pitcher Mike Marshall has an ill-chosen fast ball to credit for the gratitude of the St. Louis Cardinals' Reggie Smith.

"He made a mistake," the free-swinging Smith said Sunday after batting the Cards to a 2-1 win over Marshall and the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"It was a nice mistake," added Smith, whose ninth-inning single came at the expense of a fast ball.

"I know what he wanted to do," Smith said. "He wanted to get a quick strike on me. That's something he did to me all last year. He'd get me 0-2 and then carve me up. I think he struck me out six times in a row."

Smith's atonement was savored by teammates Bake McBride, who scored on the hit, and Al Hrabosky, who pitched a laborious single inning of relief.

"It was a struggle to get myself up," maintained Hrabosky, 5-2, also the Cards' winner Saturday in a 2-1, 10-inning struggle settled by a McBride single.

"Yesterday was a big day for me," noted the stocky lefthander, who was overlooked for All-Star selection but in whose honor a Busch Stadium banner day was held.

"One way I did get myself up was because I knew the two pitchers were Marshall and myself."

Marshall, whose record dipped to 4-6, and Hrabosky staged their late duel after the Cards snapped a scoreless duel in the sixth on Lou Brock's single and Dave Lopes homered for Los Angeles in the eighth.

Marshall convinced Alston to pitch to Smith in the ninth and then lost the game.

"There's no way he (Alston) can make that kind of decision unless he wants to throw the pitch himself," Marshall said.

"Most times I would load the bases," the manager said later. "But Marshall didn't want to do it. With the type of pitcher he is, 90 per cent of the time he's going to be able to throw it where he wants to. This time he didn't."

Marshall threw an off-target first pitch to the fleet McBride and was hammered on his next delivery for a triple to the wall in left-center.

"It was a screwball," McBride said. "He got it up a little, but I'm not particular what I hit as long as it goes."

Sympathizing some but not all with Marshall was Smith, who will become the Dodger fireman's team-mate for a night with the National League All-Stars on Tuesday.

"I guess they could have walked me, and maybe that would have been the percentage thing to do, but with the way Marshall'd handled me I don't blame them for pitching to me," Smith said.

The defeat, the Dodgers' fourth in six games, sank Los Angeles 12½ games behind the high-flying Cincinnati Reds at the All-Star break in defense of its NL West Division title.

"How'd Cincinnati feel a year ago?" Manager Walter Alston responded when asked if his club could recover. "We haven't seen them (Reds) since the opening of the season," Alston said. "All I know is they're winning every game."

Watson's big eagle did trick

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (AP)—Any golfer who birdies Carnoustie's feared par-five 14th can feel pleased with himself.

Jack Newton of Australia did it in Sunday's playoff for the British Open. But Tom Watson went him one better. He eagled it.

Watson, who was earning a history of choking in major tournaments, went on to win the crown and he said his eagle chip at the 14th was the stroke that counted the most toward the title.

"I hit a good wood for my second shot, and it landed in short grass just off the green, about 30 feet from the pin," Watson said. "I took a chipping wedge for my third shot and it ended in the hole."

Watson went on to a one-under-par 71 over the 7,065-yard, par-72 course and edged Newton by one stroke. It was the fourth time in five days that Watson had shattered par on the famous course, and it helped ease bitter memories of two consecutive U.S. Opens when he blew chances to win.

The 488-yard 14th, where the playoff turned in Watson's favor, is called "the spectacles" because two big round bunkers peer out in front of the green. Watson steered past the bunkers with his second shot but missed the green. The chip, however, was one of the outstanding shots of a memorable tournament.

Carnoustie is a dragon when the wind comes up, but for the first three days there was scarcely a breath of wind. Watson had scores of 71, 67 and 69 on the first three rounds; Newton shot 69, 71 and a course-record 65.

Then a westerly wind came up, and in the fourth round, the title was up for grabs as player after player bowed in the stiff breeze. Watson made 72 and Newton 74. The scores put them even at 279, one stroke ahead of Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller and Neil Coles, and they went to an 18-hole playoff.

Sunday the wind blew again, but from the east.

"I guess we saw Carnoustie in different conditions," Watson said. "But I know we haven't had real Carnoustie weather. I expected it to blow 100 miles per hour."

George Burns of Port Washington, N. Y., led amateurs in the 1975 Masters with a 293 total, four over par. Jerry Pate was second, one stroke back.

Bobby Nichols, whose 67 led the 1975 Masters the first day, finished with a 72-hole total of 282, six below par, and tied Hale Irwin for fourth place.

49ers in camp with 80 players

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Two 1971 draft choices — Tim Anderson and Ernie Jennings — were among 68 rookies and 12 veterans who checked into the San Francisco 49ers' training camp at UC Santa Barbara in nearby Goleta Friday.

Defensive back Anderson was No. 1 pick of the 49ers in the National Football League draft four years ago but went from Ohio State to four seasons in the Canadian league.

Jennings, a wide receiver from the Air Force Academy, was a 10th choice in the 1971 draft but had a four-year commitment for military service.

Also reporting was running back Kermit Johnson of UCLA, drafted seventh by San Francisco last year when he played in the World Football League.

Missing from the rookie contingent of 18 draftees and 50 free agents were three players who will participate in the College All-Star game: defensive tackle Jimmy Webb of Mississippi State, the club's No. 1 choice in this year's draft, and two third-round picks, offensive tackle Jim Hart of Oregon State and kicker Steve Mike Mayer of Maryland.

Second-year running back Delvin Williams joined the drill to get more work, even though he was not among the veterans invited to come early.

Players will undergo physical examinations during the weekend, with the first workout scheduled Monday.

Maltbie regains his touch

MOLINE, Ill. (AP) — "One of things I've been concerned about is my consistency," said rookie golfer Roger Maltbie. "For the last few months I seemed to have lost it."

Wherever it had been, the first-year tour pro found it Sunday to come from seven strokes off the pace set by leader Dave Eichelberger to claim the $75,000 Quad Cities Open.

Maltbie, 24, who joined the Professional Golf Association last November, had a fourround total of 275, nine under par, to win $15,000. Eichelberger finished at 276.

Eichelberger, whose last tournament victory was the 1971 Milwaukee Open, moved to a five-stroke lead Friday and was ahead by three starting Sunday's round.

"I'm having trouble getting my confidence back," the disappointed Eichelberger said afterward. "I've played so bad for two years. Several years ago, when I was in contention about five times, I felt great. Now all of a sudden when I was there, I felt nervous and that hurt me."

Maltbie, who fired a course record 64 in Sunday's final round, wasted no time closing the gap. He gained three strokes on the 510-yard first hole when he eagled it and Eichelberger bogeyed.

After the first nine holes, Eichelberger, Maltbie, first-round leader Howard Twitty Jr. and Terry Dill were tied for the lead with six-under totals.

But in an ever changing race during the rain-delayed tournament, Mark Hayes came on with a 69 to place third with 277, two strokes off the pace. Gary McCord (70) followed at 278, and Homero Blancas (69), Dill (72) and Twitty (72) were tied at 279.

Karate event at L.B. Arena

LONG BEACH — Thousands of male and female martial arts competitors, ranging from top black belts to novices from the United States and from around the world, will participate in the 12th Annual International Karate Championships at the Long Beach Arena on Saturday, August 2 and Sunday, August 3, 1975. The black belts will be competing for $6,250 in cash awards.

Ed Parker, who hosts the contest, is widely considered to be the father of American karate. A descendant of Hawaii's last monarch, King Kamehameha, Parker was the first to bring this Japanese art to the American mainland, almost two decades ago. Since then, karate and the martial arts have become an integral part of the western sports world, as evidenced by the vast popularity of television programs and films on the martial arts.

The action-filled two-day event will include all kinds of karate, including kung-fu, kata and freestyle — providing for unequalled versatility. Tickets which are good all day, both days, are on sale at Ticketron, Wallich's Music City stores and all Liberty and Mutual Ticket Agencies and at the box office. Prices are from $5.00-$7.00, with children under 12 half price.

WEISS EXHIBIT DRAWS

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — The George Weiss exhibit at baseball's Hall of Fame is one of the largest displays of mementos ever put together by an executive. When he ran the New York Yankees and later the New York Mets, Weiss had a hobby of collecting souvenirs from pennant-winning years.

The dazzling display has been moved by Mrs. Hazel Weiss from her home in Greenwich, Conn. It includes plaques, medals, cartoons, silver corks, pictures and jewelry. The display has been drawing many admirers.

Vessels Maturity winner

LOS ALAMITOS, Calif. (AP) — She's Precious won a stretch duel with Wanta Go on Saturday night to score a nose victory in the $100,200 Vessels Maturity at Los Alamitos race track.

The 4-year-old filly, with Terry Lipham in the driver's seat, covered the 440 yards in 21.77 to finish ahead of Wanta Go under Danny Cardozo. Smooth Me was third another three quarters of a length back. Favored Timeto Thinkrich was fourth a nose behind Smooth Me.

She's Precious returned $9.80, $5.20 and $4.40 for a $2 wager. Wanta Go paid $4.80 and $3.80. Smooth Me gave back $8.20.

She's Precious took an early lead but Wanta Go pulled even with the Roma Charge mare midway through the race as both horses carried 122 pounds. The victory earned $45,090 for She's Precious, bringing her lifetime earnings to $74,082.

Timeto Thinkrich, an 8-5 favorite, failed in his bid to become only the second horse to reach the $600,000 mark in lifetime earnings.

Redlands of California has won the past three NAIA tennis tournaments and nine in the past 10 years.

A WATERGATE HORSE

NEW YORK (AP) — When people mention a political coverup they naturally think of the Watergate incident. But at Belmont Park racetrack there's a pretty good 3-year-old bay colt named Political Coverup. After showing fine speed in morning workouts at Belmont, the son of Buckpasser-Bold Consort won his first start at Aqueduct by two lengths and returned $17 for $2.

TRIES TO MAKE CONTACT

SAN DIEGO (AP) — John Grubb of the San Diego Padres was one of the National League's hottest hitters during May. On April 21 he was hitting .195 but by May 21, as the team's lead-off batter, he had moved over the .300 mark.

During his hot streak Grubb made 42 hits in 102 trips to the plate. He also drew 12 walks during the streak. "Making contact with the pitch is half the battle," says Grubb.

We're a great big rollin' railroad movin' fast and runnin' strong.

It may be the age of automation, but it's still people, much more than computers, who keep our great big rollin' railroad rollin'. People who see that the goods and produce you need are delivered dependably and economically. People who move your California-grown and manufactured products to Midwestern and Eastern markets, on time, intact.

We're the Union Pacific, and if you've been looking at us as cold impersonal railroad cars, we suggest you look again... look deeper. You'll see a modern, vital form of transportation moving all types of goods for all types of needs. That's the big reason...

In honor of donor

Pomona College names Minnie Cairns Chair

Pomona College today announced the establishment of the Minnie B. Cairns Chair in Geology honoring the memory of a Southern California woman who amassed a fortune through shrewd stock investments and gave most of it to the college.

Details of the unusual example of educational philanthropy by a woman who had only slightly more than a grammar school education were disclosed by David Alexander, Pomona president.

Miss Cairns was raised on farms in Kansas and Illinois where she developed an interest in the land. She attended country schools and worked as a cashier and a stenographer, never earning more than $150 a month. However, she displayed an uncanny ability to make profitable investments and when she moved to California in 1935, her total assets were about $38,000.

In the early 1950s Miss Cairns answered an advertisement and asked for more information about the Pomona Plan of Annuity and Life Income Gifts, a program which allows a benefactor to receive income from whatever funds are placed with the college. Allen B. Hawley, the man credited with originating the plan, called on Miss Cairns in her Glendale home.

Hawley, now retired and a resident of Claremont, said that Miss Cairns did not admit him to her house but spoke with him through a peephole in the door. "I think I can make better investments than you can," she said.

A few years after the first meeting, Miss Cairns called the college and a warm relationship developed. She began making a series of gifts which totalled $133,950 during her lifetime.

Assets at the time of her death in 1971 amounted to $993,204, most of which went to Pomona. Two other colleges received smaller amounts from her estate.

Hawley said that Miss Cairns told him that the basic facts about her gifts could be revealed after her death, but he never learned what technique she developed for picking the best of the blue chip stocks or the land mortgages which were to bring the highest prices during the growth years in Southern California.

One clue to her success in the perilous world of investments probably stemmed from experience she gained during the years she worked as a cashier with a farm loan company in the Omaha, Neb., area, Hawley believes.

Boy hurt critically in crash

Two Pomona children were injured, one critically, Sunday afternoon in a two-car traffic accident in Arrow Highway east of Merrywood Street in Pomona.

Mark Anthony Williams, 5, was being treated today for a skull fracture in Pomona Valley Community Hospital where his condition was termed critical. His sister, Martha Kathryn Williams, 3, was released after treatment of a leg injury.

The accident occurred shortly after noon. Police reported that a car driven by Albert Evan Thompson, 43, 2436 Logan St., Pomona, slammed into the rear of a car driven by Frank Williams, 41, 2323 Logan St., Pomona, after Williams double-parked to talk to a friend.

Williams' small car was overturned by the impact which also hurled the little boy from the car.

Williams was unhurt. Thompson suffered minor injuries, but did not require medical attention.

S. El Monte man killed in fall

A 21-year-old South El Monte man fell to his death Saturday afternoon while hiking north of Azusa in San Gabriel Canyon near West Fork Road and Highway 39, sheriff's deputies reported.

The victim, Xaular Ramirez, was pronounced dead at the scene by a physician flown there by sheriff's helicopter.

Deputies said a witness saw the victim fall about 300 feet down a cliff. The victim's brother, who was not identified, also witnessed the accident, deputies said.

Canyon crash injures woman

A two-car collision Saturday afternoon on Live Oak Canyon Road north of College Way in the Claremont area resulted in minor injuries to a La Verne woman.

The two drivers were Richard B. Marshall, 17, of 4059 N. Garey Ave., La Verne, and Deborah D. Hoehn, 25, of 267 W. Summit Road, La Verne. The latter was hurt slightly and said she would see her own doctor.

Bank promotion

Ethelyn C. Richardson of Diamond Bar has been promoted from commercial and real estate loan officer to assistant manager for loans at the Bank of America's Puente-Amar office in La Puente.

Claremont

To study traffic problem

Because the city doesn't have the $30,000 needed for traffic signals, the Claremont Traffic Safety Commission tonight at 7:30 will look for remedial measures for the intersection of Harrison Avenue and Indian Hill Boulevard.

The City Council referred the matter back to the commission, and suggested consideration of right-turn-only signs to prevent cars on Harrison Avenue from making a left turn or crossing Indian Hill Boulevard.

STANLEY B. HENSCH

JPL writer will explain Mars probe

Stanley B. Hensch, technical writing specialist with the Jet Propulsion Laboratory at Pasadena, will explain The "Viking" Mission to Mars to members of the University Club of Claremont at noon Tuesday at Griswold's.

Hensch will illustrate his talk with a film entitled, "Mars — the Search Begins."

The Viking project is an effort at Jet Propulsion Laboratory to soft-land two automated probes on the surface of Mars in 1976.

Burning papers in fireplace sets house on fire

Smoldering newspapers in the fireplace caused a fire which spread to the roof of an expensive San Dimas home Sunday, inflicting $20,000 damage.

Los Angeles County firemen said someone had been burning papers in the chimney of the home of Robert B. Minto at 3047 Roy Cove Drive, Via Verde, and the embers spread to the roof, about 5:30 p.m.

The blaze caused $15,000 damage to the structure and $5,000 to the contents, officials said. Basically confined to the roof, the fire also caused water damage to the attic and ceiling and smoke damage inside the home.

Firemen said there were no injuries, as family members left the home when the blaze started.

About 16 firemen responded to the fire, including four engine companies and a truck company. Firefighters took 15 minutes to extinguish the blaze.

City Public Works Director Paul E. Cook said he would be opposed to taking temporary action measures which may cause problems which do not exist, and suggested no additional traffic control devices until the traffic signals can be installed.

Cook said that the vast majority of accidents has been caused by vehicles not negotiating the curve on Indian Hill Boulevard.

Cook explained that a citizens suggestion that Harrison Avenue be

Building permits plummet

A restaurant addition and construction of a new industrial building topped building activity last month in Pomona.

City officials issued 176 building permits during June, which represent a $449,725 valuation. This compares with the previous June of 176 permits and $3.2 million valuation.

Last month's permits included $100,000 for an addition to the Acapulco Mexican Restaurant, 510 E. Foothill Blvd., and $100,000 for a masonry industrial building at 1689 Mission Blvd.

By building category, the June permits and valuations are:

Residential additions and alterations, 143, $153,483; industrial buildings, one, $100,000; residential carports and garages, one, $2,500; swimming pools, six, $25,900; additions and alterations to non residential buildings, five, $114,297; all other permits, nine, $36,160; and signs, four, $12,700.

June activity boosted the six month totals to 1,002 permits and a $3.5 million valuation. This compared with the same period last year with 915 permits and $5.2 million valuation.

Move lifting price lid on oil delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford announced today a move to gradually lift price ceilings on domestic oil but minutes later decided to delay formally presenting it to Congress to allow time for "discussion and public dialogue."

In retracting a statement that Ford's blueprint for administrative action would go to Congress today, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford's decision to wait until later in the week grew out of an early morning meeting with Democratic and Republican congressional leaders.

However, Nessen said Ford has no plan to alter the key elements of his planned administrative action.

The presidential blueprint would lift present oil price ceilings over a two-and-one-half year period and fix an eventual ceiling of about $13.50 a barrel for all domestically-produced oil.

Ford estimated the decontrol price hike would result in a saving of 300,000 barrels of oil a day and, combined with his other programs, would help save up to 900,000 barrels a day.

Nessen said the delay in formal submission of the plan to Congress was to allow further discussion of a complex matter inasmuch as, once it is submitted, either house would have five days in which to block Ford's move if it was deemed unsatisfactory. The press secretary said by waiting, members of Congress will have more time in which to make up their minds.

Many citizens in golf carts or cars wish to use Harrison Avenue to get to church and the Village, Cook said, adding he thinks Harrison is too important to close.

Only one right-angle accident has occurred in two years involving a car on Harrison Avenue.

ASTRONAUT IN FAMILY

Pomona General Telephone employee Don Snyder displays some of the family mementos he and his family have collected from Donald Slayton, Snyder's brother-in-law, one of the three American astronauts taking part in the joint American-Soviet space mission.

Pomonans guests at space launch

Don Snyder, an employee of General Telephone in Pomona, will be at Cape Canaveral in Florida Tuesday to witness the launch of the joint American-Soviet space mission.

Snyder and his family are among the personally invited-guests of the American space crew, which includes his brother-in-law, Astronaut Donald K. "Deek" Slayton, docking module pilot for the mission.

Tuesday's launch will be the second witnessed by Snyder, who viewed the blast-off of Apollo 8 in 1968 as the guest of Wally M. Schirra Jr.

"It's an awe-inspiring experience. You stand more than two miles from the launch site and the force of the blast rises at you like a hurricane. The noise is not only deafening, it goes right through you," he said.

Snyder, his wife, Nora, and son, Kirk, are residents of La Mirada.

Crash hurts 2 in Montclair

Two persons were hurt slightly in a two-car collision on Ramona Avenue south of State Street near Montclair Saturday evening.

The drivers were John F. Bell, 42, of 1814 Roanoke Road, Claremont, and Michael Dimitry, 30, of 6935 Hermosa Dr., Alta Loma.

Dimitry's two passengers, Cathy Dimitry, 27, and Ninette Dimitry, 9, suffered minor injuries in the collision. They went to their own doctor for treatment.

Flood control channel

Three rescued, given citations

Two men and three juveniles were cited by Montclair police for trespassing after swift, surging water carried them some three miles in the San Antonio flood control channel from Upland to Montclair Sunday afternoon.

"These people had a long ride, from the San Antonio Channel, north of Upland to Benito and San Bernardino Streets in Montclair, but they caused so much difficulty to police and firemen attempting to rescue them we cited them," Police Sgt. Bill Goff said.

Police are issuing trespassing citations to anyone entering the channel after repeated incidents and near tragedies last year in the channel. Last year more than a dozen youths and adults in the channel were rescued by firemen, police and local residents.

Currents in the channel are pushed by water surges coming from mountain dams at speeds of more than 40 miles an hour. The slick bottom of the channel prevents swimmers from stopping themselves once they enter.

Cited for trespassing Sunday were Timothy Joseph Carr, 19, of 1854 Lake St., Ontario; Perry Carver North, 18, of 10113 Helena St., Montclair, and the three juveniles.

Goff said that the first swimmer, a juvenile was plucked out of the stream by a number of local residents hearing his cries for help at Benito Street and the channel. The juvenile told rescuers that four other persons were caught in the current and coming downstream behind him.

Again local residents, firemen and police threw in ropes to rescue the four others at San Bernardino Street and the channel. None of the swimmers was injured.

Young secretary dies of unknown causes

A young secretary for the Pomona Community Crisis Center died late Saturday night of undetermined causes, police reported.

The victim, Sandra Denise Olivas, 18, 2229 S. Powers St., was pronounced dead at 2167 S. Powers St. after firemen were summoned there by a young man described as her boyfriend. The man, Arthur Wayne Gilmore, 19, reportedly told officers that he awoke at about 11:30 p.m. and found Miss Olivas unconscious. Firemen were unable to revive her.

Police said Gilmore told them that there had been a reception there earlier and Miss Olivas had retired after the others left. He said she had consumed alcoholic beverages at the party and also had taken Darvon, a tranquilizer.

Police reported that Gilmore told them that he is a former narcotics addict who met Miss Olivas at the crisis center where she worked. An autopsy has been ordered to determine the cause of the young woman's death.

Miss Olivas had been employed at the crisis center, 637 N. Park Ave., for about six months. The group assists drug addicts.

New DMV program

Motorists visiting the Department of Motor Vehicles in Pomona will be offered a new service beginning Monday.

High School and college students hired under a federal program for the summer will check tires for tread and pressure, check windshield wipers and even wash windows.

The youths are being paid $2.10 per hour under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

The workers are called the Courtesy Corps and will greet motorists in the DMV parking lot.

The Pomona office is one of more than 70 throughout the state participating in the summer program.

Library group to elect officers

Friends of the Claremont Public Library will hold their annual meeting and election of officers Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the new library at Harvard Avenue and Second Street.

Library plans in California for the next decade will be reviewed by retiring President Margaret Gibbs who attended a library planning conference at the University of San Francisco in June.

She had been invited to the conference by state Librarian Ethel Crockett, of the 100 participants, some 85 are professional librarians, while others represented library support groups.

Nominated for officers for the 1975-76 years are Mrs. Marjorie Legters, president; Mrs. Pat Woy, vice-president; Mrs. Pamela Herringer, secretary; and Mrs. Joell Brightfield, treasurer.

The nominating committee was composed of former Presidents Patti Livingston, Pat Woy, Naomi Levine, and Joyce Brown.

Mrs. Martha Ainsworth, children's librarian, will report on the children's summer reading program, to which the Friends group gave $100 for special programs and treats.

Mrs. Rosalia Martinez of the city staff will describe progress made on the repairs of the storybook tile mural damaged when the former library was razed. The repaired mural will be mounted in the children's room.

Library patrons are invited to attend the meeting. This oldest support group in the Los Angeles County Library System asks $2 for annual membership fees, or $7 for patron dues, of which $5 is spent for wanted new books.

Food stamps — costly aid

Much the same thing is happening to the food stamp program as has happened to the Social Security system.

Born in the Great Depression, Social Security was intended to provide a minimum income for those no longer working or unable to work. Its purpose was to stave off dire poverty among the elderly, the disabled, the widowed or orphaned.

Since then, of course, for millions of Americans Social Security has become their sole retirement income rather than merely a supplement to other income or savings. As every working person knows, payroll deductions needed to pay for steadily increasing Social Security benefits have soared to the point where many Americans are paying more in Social Security taxes than in income taxes.

Likewise, food stamps were originally conceived as a food-purchase subsidy provided by the federal government for families or individuals below a certain level of income. Since 1971, enrollment in the program has risen from about 9.4 million people to nearly 20 million and its cost is expected to reach $6.5 billion in the fiscal year that began July 1.

How far we have departed from the original concept of the program is shown by the recent ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington invalidating the formula upon which food stamp payments are based. The action was taken in response to a classaction suit brought by nine low-income families, the city of New York, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the National Welfare Rights Organization.

"For a family that needs a loaf of bread, the offer of a slice is poor comfort," said a three-judge panel, ordering the Agriculture Department to come up with a new formula that allows food stamp recipients to purchase "a nutritionally adequate diet."

Most people will probably go along with this, just as they have gone along with the idea that Social Security should provide every American with an adequate standard of living — assuming that we can agree on what is "adequate" in either case.

But while the Agriculture Department is liberalizing its eligibility requirements for those who really need food stamps, it is long past time for it to tighten up its procedures to exclude those who don't need them.

Congress has passed a temporary law banning stamps for students claimed as dependents by well-off families. Just the other day, however, the Senate Agriculture Committee was told that the department's complicated schedule of deductions is allowing many middle-income families to qualify for government help in paying their grocery bills. Expenses that can be subtracted from gross income include such things as federal, state and local taxes, Social Security taxes, medical costs over $10 a month, child care payments, tuition fees, rent or mortgages payments and union dues and alimony payments.

Urging its members not to be "too proud" to apply for food stamps, the National Education Assn. reports that one Minnesota teacher, with six children, qualified for stamps despite an income of $14,900.

Twenty million is a lot of people. It's nearly one out of every 10 Americans. In that large a number of food stamp recipients there are bound to be abuses, as well as instances where truly needy families are not receiving as much as they need. No doubt there are also many Americans who could qualify for the stamps but cling to the rather old-fashioned idea that they are responsible for their own support and that of their children.

The trouble is that the food stamp program is merely a kind of Band-Aid remedy applied to one symptom of the underlying sickness in the economy. As noted, its enrollment has more than doubled in four years. Unless the fundamental problems of inflation and unemployment are solved, it could grow even more prodigiously in coming years.

Judge's message

The slogan, "Beer Drinkers Make Better Lovers," may be of questionable validity, but as long as a school permits other kinds of "messages" to be emblazoned on T-shirts, it cannot outlaw this particular one.

So ruled U.S. District Court Judge William K. Thomas in Cleveland in a complaint brought by several students against administrators of Perry Township, Ohio, schools. At the same time, however, the judge extended a 1970 federal court decision that bans on long hair deprived no one of his constitutional rights.

Quoting approvingly a statement by Perry School superintendent Paul E. Pfeiffer that "if you let people dress down, they act down," Judge Thomas upheld the school's prohibitions against tattered jeans, bare feet and other aspects of its dress code.

It may be a harsh truth for the heirs of the now wilted Flower Generation, but it is gradually being impressed upon them that there are limitations to informality and that they have nothing to do with freedom of expression.

To put it in blunter language, when you look like a bum, you tend to act like a bum. There may be places for bums, but society has decided that school is not one of them.

End of recycling program hit

Dear Sir:

I have watched with great interest the progress of the City of Pomona's "Ben Recycl-Ed" Newspaper Recovery Program and was quite disappointed to learn that the valuable program was discontinued after only 49 weeks in operation.

During these times when we should all be considering all aspects of recycling (resource recovery) I would think that the persons responsible for seeing that the program continue be especially interested in its continuance.

We all know that in order to change our society from that of "a throw-away" to a "recycling" that we must first start with newspaper recycling and build from that point. The City of Pomona took that first important step in June, 1974, but now they have taken backward steps through their cancellation of the program.

The cities of Downey, Ontario, Fullerton, West Covina and many others realize the importance of recycling and are moving ahead into other areas such as the recycling of glass, aluminum and other valuable resources, as well as newspaper. With Garden State Paper Company located in the City of Pomona and offering the "Ben Recycled" program premium dollar ($20 per ton) for the newspaper it generated, then you would think that the city would want to be considered as one of the valley's crusading cities in the area of recycling.

I urgently request that City Hall reconsider their decision and reinstate the newspaper recovery program and seriously consider other methods of resource recovery.

Gasoline price hike assailed

Dear Sir:

As a student of philosophy I am aware that we are powerless to change many of our life circumstances. But of the few we can change, I believe that the situation of rising gasoline prices can be changed.

Any grammar school child knows a tariff is to promote the economy within one's own country. President Ford's imposition of an oil tariff will cause business tycoons to up the price of gasoline. We — the common man — will be paying their bill.

The public can demonstrate its refusal to be taken in by such balderdash by writing letters to its congressmen, boycotting high price gasoline stations and by its own awareness of the truth of the "rip-off" being perpetrated.

Reason for weather treaty

WASHINGTON — We broke the astonishing news on March 18, 1971, that Air Force rainmakers had succeeded in turning the weather against the North Vietnamese.

We cited secret reports which "claimed success in creating man-made cloudbursts over the Ho Chi Minh Trail complex." This "caused flooding conditions along the trails," we wrote, "making them impassable" and hampering the movement of military supplies.

This has now led to a Soviet-American agreement, soon to be announced, outlawing certain forms of environmental warfare. The details are still being hammered out, but both nations will pledge not to produce earthquakes, hurricanes and the like as weapons of war.

In the back rooms, the U.S. negotiators have acknowledged that our story was correct and that the weather makers produced cloudbursts over the trails.

They doubt, however, that the seeding operations had a major impact on the weather. They believe it was merely a coincidence that North Vietnam in November, 1971, was lashed by the worst storms in four decades. Floods washed out roads, destroyed villages and caused more damage than four years of U.S. bombing.

But these storms, the experts insist, were produced by natural causes.

SPORTS SCANDAL: The Securities and Exchange Commission is investigating a million-dollar controversy involving more than 100 of the nation's top professional athletes.

The inquiry was touched off by a lawsuit against Professional Sports Advisors, Inc., which represents a host of sports all-stars.

The suit was brought by three athletes — football star Otis Armstrong of the Denver Broncos and basketball stars Ralph Simpson and Mike Green of the Denver Nuggets — who claimed they had been bilked by a clever combination of land deals and tax frauds.

An attorney for PSA called the allegations "all lies" and pointed out that much of the suit has been dismissed. He contended that the litigation is part of a harassment campaign against his client by an unnamed rival organization.

The SEC, nevertheless, is checking into the land deals to determine whether any federal securities laws were violated.

The dismissed portion of the suit, filed in Cleveland federal court, alleged that $1.2 million was collected from about 100 athletes and invested in a phony land scheme.

The list of investors reads like the starting line-up for an All-Star game.

In football, the firm represents such stars as Charlie Taylor and Ken Houston of the Washington Redskins, Mercury Morris and Larry Little of the Miami Dolphins and Terry Metcalf of the St. Louis Cardinals. Plaintiff Otis Armstrong led the American Football Conference in rushing last year.

In baseball, the client list includes Bobby Darwin of the Minnesota Twins, Greg Luzinski of the Philadelphia Phillies, Luis Tiant of the Boston Red Sox and Sandy Alomar and Elliot Maddox of the New York Yankees.

Just in jest

As if they didn't already have enough to keep them busy for years to come, our courts are now adding to their backlog of work by reversing each other's decisions. Latest in a long list of such rulings is the California Supreme Court's reinstatement of the State Obscenity Statute after it had been declared unconstitutional by a Federal Court. — Oh well, I suppose it is all in good cause. In times like these, with unemployment running rampant throughout the land, such actions do guarantee that our judges and lawyers are not going to be on unemployment relief for a long, long time.

U.S. is a poor bill collector

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — It passed totally without public notice the other day, but the Soviet Union actually made a payment toward its World War I debt to America.

Yes, by jingo, you read right. True, the $12 million Russian check was 60 years past due, and is merely a nibble of their $722 million outstanding loan, but surely mass celebration is in order. Hoist the colors. Go wake grandma. Anytime America is repaid anything is time for whoopee.

Actually, Russia is not the only nation making some restitution for American generosity in the war against the Kaiser. From time to time Greece and Finland also pay installments on their obligations of the period. Otherwise, though, the United States receives nothing. Original American loans in World War I totaled $12 billion and, with interest, have since doubled, yet only crumbs of the total will ever be recovered. Seventeen nations, including France, Italy and Britain, refuse outright to repay a single copper.

But if there is a lesson here concerning the risks and barren fruits of international generosity, some in this town wonder if it will ever be learned. Even now, say a few grumbling members of Congress, the United States is continuing to make massive loans around the world with little hope of fair return. Sen. Harry Byrd of Virginia says foreign nations have currently accumulated at least $32.8 billion in U.S. credit of which they will not in some cases and can not in others repay. Rep. Jack Kemp of New York adds that the charity in the best of times is of dubious merit, but is downright nuts in periods when the cheese is hard.

Byrd and Kemp are among a small group of federal lawmakers who periodically growl legislatively about the merits of lending money without attaching collection guarantees. Their efforts are studiously ignored. Complaining in Congress about the foreign debt is of a class with complaining about the public debt — a preserve of those hardy enough to withstand the snickers of their fellows.

Byrd points out vigorously that taxpayers who are now contributing $100 million a day in interest on the national debt are tired of having both interest and principal ignored on most of the foreign debt. His protests, however, are greeted with snores.

In fact, the snores are not overt insults; rather they represent the congressional consensus that even were there a will there would not be a way to collect on the bulk of the foreign debt. That debt, including World War I, now totals more than $56 billion, and as a practical matter is largely an accounting of money that is gone forever. The World War I sum has been a moot issue for years and is kept on the official books only because no one in authority has ever seriously tried to have it removed. As for the rest of the debt ($32.8 billion) it is mostly the result of diplomatic largess rather than hard-headed business procedures, thus returns of friendships or advantages are expected but not necessarily the loans themselves.

On occasions the United States can get tough over old debts. To collect part of some claims against Czechoslovakia, it once seized $125 million worth of Czech gold, and later confiscated Czech funds in this country meant to build a steel mill. Currently, the government is following similar strategies to satisfy claims against the new regime in South Vietnam. But such collection tactics are rare. Normally the United States forgives its debts as it invariably forgives its debtors — $11 billion worth of World War II Lend Lease to Russia was forgotten in the 1940's, as, more recently, was $2 billion in Indian-owed rupees.

In essence, Senator Byrd, Congressman Kemp and their cluster of congressional protesters would put bounds to the U.S. generosity. They feel loans should not be made unless repayment is reasonably assured. They feel pragmatism as well as diplomacy should be part of the loan negotiation process. And they feel the ultimate welters should be removed from the list of future considerations.

To this end they have introduced various legislation which, given the mood of Congress on this hoary issue, is not expected to go far. But one never knows. If the Soviets are suddenly writing out obligation checks to this country, then anything is possible.

Photos finished; check received

I had my son's picture taken by Home Portrait Studio of Los Angeles last March at my home.

A man showed me the proofs in April and I ordered nine pictures in three sizes. I paid the man $26.42. Previously, when the appointment was made, I paid two Blue Chip stamp books.

The pictures were supposed to arrive in 10 to 14 days. When they did not, I called the studio. A woman told me the pictures were in the lab and would be mailed out the next day.

As they didn't arrive, I phoned again. The woman told me they were still in the lab but she would mail them out personally on May 1.

They didn't come, although the woman said she had mailed them out. She said she would put a tracer on them.

When they still didn't arrive, I called again. I was told someone would call back. That never happened.

The next time I called, I talked with the man who had shown me the proofs. He said no tracer had been put on the pictures but according to his notes they were mailed April 17.

The woman I had talked with then phoned me. She said if the pictures didn't come in 10 days to call the studio and I would get a refund.

After I had called three more times without receiving any refund, I filed a complaint with the consumer fraud division of the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department.

I would appreciate anything you could do to expedite the arrival of the pictures or a refund. — R.N., San Dimas.

We sent your letter and one of our own to Home Portrait Studio.

When we received no answer in 15 days and you still didn't have your refund, we contacted the state Department of Consumer Affairs.

A few days later you got your refund check.

We have received some advertising material through the mail regarding an organization in Oregon called Survival, Inc., and an "amazing discovery," a chemical known as DMSO (dimethyl sulfoxide).

DMSO is described as a liquid by-product of trees and is said to promise relief from pain and hunger. The "father" of DMSO is Dr. Stanley W. Jacob, associate professor of surgery at the University of Oregon Health Sciences Center.

We have been asked to contribute money to Survival. Can you comment? — Mrs. F.A., Pomona.

The material you received included names of members of an honorary advisory board consisting of six medical doctors, an author and science consultant, three educators and a U.S. senator.

For Action Line, the Federal Trade Commission checked with two board members, Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon and Dr. Frank Edward of Harvard Medical School.

Both board memberships are authentic, reports Shirley Birkline, representing the FTC, and Sen. Hatfield is enthusiastic about Survival.

She forwarded our letter to the Food and Drug Administration. If we get more information about Survival and DMSO, we will keep readers informed.

Ann Landers

Get ring or give him the slip

Dear Ann Landers: I hope all those people who think living together is as good as or better than getting married will read this letter — and think again. I am in such a trap and I don't know what to do.

G. and I decided we were in love. He didn't want to get married again after two divorces (one was a real mess), and it was O.K. with me. That was seven years ago.

Our five-year-old son starts school in the fall. His name is the same as mine. I will have to go to school with him and write on the registration blank, son of Miss A.L. and G.O. How will it look?

Whenever I mention marriage, G. says, "I couldn't think more of you if you were my legal wife. Let's not spoil our beautiful relationship by getting married. I did that twice."

He really treats me royally, Ann, and he's crazy about the boy. Tell me what to do. — No-Ring Woman

Dear Woman: Give G. ten days to make up his mind. Either you get a ring on your finger and that piece of paper in your hand, or it's goodbye. And make it stick.

If he loves you and the boy as much as you say, he'll marry you. If not, it's better that you know it now.

Dear Ann Landers: My brother telephoned me last night, quite upset. He said he had just received a note from the principal of his son's school saying Jerry, who is six years old and in the first grade, is known for picking on the other kids and makes a general nuisance of himself. The principal warned him that if Jerry hasn't settled down by the time school starts in the fall, he will be expelled.

Is it possible to expel a first grader? How can Jerry be helped? — Concerned Uncle

Dear Uncle: A child whose antisocial behavior disrupts the classroom can be expelled no matter what the age.

Obviously your nephew needs counseling and so do his parents. Children who cannot get along with others and misbehave constantly are troubled. They seek attention outside the home because there are so few rewards in the home.

It would be helpful if you could establish a close relationship with Jerry so when he feels the need for help he can holler "Uncle."

Dear Ann Landers: I am very fond of a young man who needs psychiatric help. He has moods that are frightening. Sometimes he becomes so depressed I'm afraid he might take his life. Other times he is euphoric beyond description.

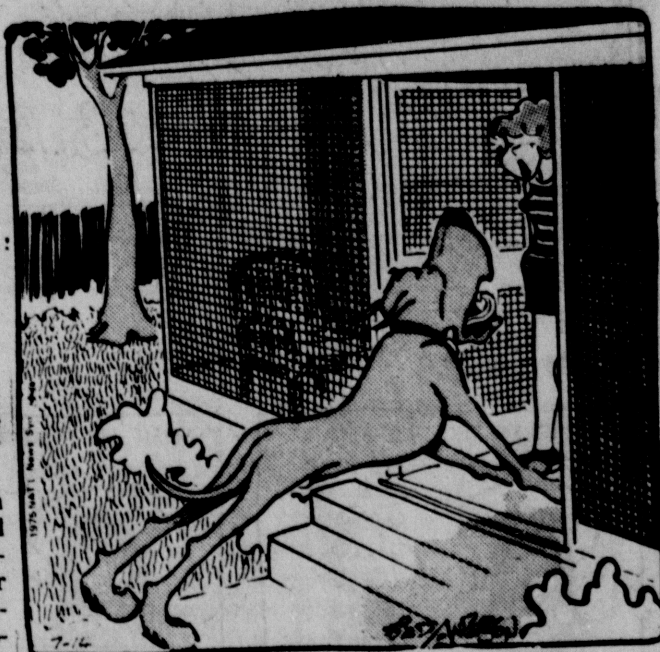

His temper is unpredictable. I never know before we meet whether he is going to be cheerful and affectionate, or glum and rejecting.

I've begged him to seek professional help (he can well afford the best) but he refuses. What can I do? — Plenty Worried

Dear P.L.: Nothing. Unless a person recognizes the need and wants to avail himself of it, it's utterly hopeless. This goes for alcoholics, overeaters, chain-smokers — the whole kit and kaboodle. Nobody changes anybody. People have to change themselves. And it's the hardest work there is.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious — lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

First born child termed brighter

Some scholars in The Netherlands recently analyzed the school records of nearly 400,000 19-year-old men. They say their study conclusively proves that the IQs of people tend to decrease from first to last born. In other words, if your first-born youngster isn't the brightest, and if your last-born is the opposite, they're exceptions. The sampling was so big that those Dutch researchers say they just can't believe their findings are wrong.

MOST COMMON expression of girls in telephone conversations is "Goodbye now." Most common expression of boys in such conversations is "Talk to you later."

LOVE AND WAR

Q. "Ask your Love and War man if he still believes the typical wedding ceremony should retain the phrase 'for better or for worse'."

A. He finds no fault with that. However, he says, considering how many people put on weight after they settle down, maybe the ceremony also ought to contain the phrase "through thick and thin."

Q. "DO DOGS ever suffer from tonsillitis or appendicitis?"

A. Tonsillitis, yes. Appendicitis, no. A dog doesn't have an appendix. Has something in just about the same place that looks like an appendix. It's called a caecum. But that bit of tissue evidently doesn't ever act up.

THE HARD FACTS

The spurt speed of a leatherback turtle in water is faster than any man can run . . . IF YOU DON'T spend a total of two whole years talking on the telephone during your lifetime, you're just not average . . . MARKETING MEN contend that one out of every five credit card users changes more than $100 a month.

HOW COULD I have neglected so long to tell you this week's favorite classified ad? It reads: "Personals: Dear Raggedy Ann, this is goodbye. I've fallen in love with a Barbie doll. (Signed) Raggedy Andy."

THAT WORD "orientation" originally meant simply the precise placing of a church's east window in such a position that the rising sun could shine through it onto the altar.

Dr. Lamb

B-12 cures pernicious anemia

DEAR DR. LAMB — Would you please tell me what kind of pills are taken in place of B-12 shots for pernicious anemia?

Do people with pernicious anemia ever die directly from it if they take medication faithfully? I know of a person who lived to be 80 years old and took pills since he was 40. He never had shots.

I would appreciate it if you would enlighten me on this.

DEAR READER — Solving pernicious anemia is one of the real triumphs of medicine in the 20th century. Many people died from it until recent times. Marie Curie, the famed discoverer of radium died with it in 1934. Death in these cases was from overwhelming and uncontrollable anemia, causing abnormal function of many organs but ending up causing heart failure. Vitamin B-12 is essential in the normal cell regeneration process. Our body constantly regenerates itself. The splitting or doubling of cells to do this depends in part on B-12.

The anemia is prominent because we must manufacture so many new red blood cells each day. Your body manufactures about three million new red blood cells every second. Your red cells only last about 120 days. When you can't do this because of vitamin B-12 deficiency anemia is one of the earlier manifestations of the disease. All other cells that must regenerate rapidly in the body are also affected.

The lining of the small intestine is normally replaced every three days, and this replacement requires B-12. It is not surprising that digestive complaints are common in pernicious anemia.

Dogs also get pernicious anemia. A clever physician, Dr. George Whipple, from the University of Rochester, showed you could feed raw beef liver to dogs and cure them. Then two Harvard physicians, Drs. Richards Minot and William Murphy demonstrated that you could treat humans by feeding them liver. I suspect that is where the idea gained strength that you should have liver regularly. The truth is today you can get anything in liver from other sources.

By 1929 it was realized that some cases of pernicious anemia occurred because an important enzyme manufactured by the stomach was missing. The enzyme was needed to enable the body to absorb vitamin B-12. The real problem people were having was an inability to absorb vitamin B-12, even when the diet contained adequate amounts. The large intake of liver worked because it provided so much B-12, that some of it, enough to solve the problem, got absorbed in spite of the loss of the vital stomach enzyme.

The poor ability to absorb B-12 is why shots have been used. The B-12 given this way gets directly into the body rather than being lost through the digestive tract.

You can take very large doses of B-12 and absorb enough to help, but most doctors think this is not nearly as reliable as injections to avoid the problem of poor absorption.

A related problem is folic deficiency that is much like pernicious anemia. These patients can take folic acid by mouth. For more information about these vitamins and pernicious anemia send 50 cents and a long, self-addressed stamped envelope to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, New York, NY 10019, and ask for The Health Letter number 4-5 on Pernicious Anemia.

Jacoby's bridge

One short of game invites it

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Jim: "In the language of bids any bid of one less than game is a strong invitation to partner to go on to game. In most cases if you want to play it as a force, you won't get into trouble."

Oswald: "In standard American, South's two notrump rebid is just a strong invitation, but not quite a force. In Jacoby modern we go along with the best current practice and play it as a force to game, except if partner rebids to three of his minor suit, we can drop him there."

Jim: "South's opening bid is just about a jack above a minimum, but North's two over one response has promised at least ten points. South properly elects to rebid to two notrump."

Oswald: "Even if North does not play the two notrump bid as a force, he should go on to three notrump. You might as well try for something worthwhile rather than go after a part score."

Jim: "There is little to the play of the hand. South takes the first heart, tries the diamond finesse and wraps up three notrump when it succeeds."

Oswald: "If it had failed, he would have been down one, but year in and year out you win by bidding even money games."

Ask the Jacobys

What is the correct opening bid vulnerable with:
♠ A Q J 7 6 5 ♥ A 2 ♦ 6 4 ♣ 5 3 ?

The correct opening bid either vulnerable or not vulnerable is one spade. There is no good reason to preempt when you hold two aces and your hand is not strong enough for a forcing opening bid. Of course, you will jump at your next turn if partner responds.

Escalators are moving stairways that we see in some department stores, railroad, bus and air terminals. People are carried up or down simply by standing still on the moving stairs.

The word "escalator" was made up from a Latin word meaning ladder.

Basically, an escalator is an endless chain of steps, much like a conveyor belt. The chain travels endlessly around electric-powered gears, or drive shafts.

Rollers on each step guide it on a metal track as it travels up or down.

At the top and bottom, the steps flatten out so that two or three of them are level with the floor. This is to make it easier for the passenger to step on and off without tripping. A handrail on each side moves with the stairs and helps people keep their balance.

There are also moving sidewalk escalators. A person can stand on one of these sidewalks and be carried along without walking a step!

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other line prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Claremont music fest ranks high

By RALPH PIERCE
Last week's Claremont Music Festival offered concerts featuring first music for strings and then, on Friday, works for wind instruments. On both occasions the players showed us playing of the highest caliber.

Wednesday's concert opened with a performance of one of the Bach Suites for solo cello played by faculty member, Dimitri Markevich. Performance of this work could be described as being more scholarly than inspiring and Mr. Markevich never did quite succeed in bringing the work into sharp focus or giving it the rhythmic stability to make it come to life. After Bach, he joined forces with violinist Charles Libove for a performance of the rarely heard Ravel sonata for violin and cello. In this work, all technical problems were put aside and the two artists offered a convincing performance, which showed another side of Ravel's artistry from the big orchestral sounds of his larger works.

The evening closed with a beautiful performance of the Schubert Quintet in C major. Five faculty members produced an artistic collaboration which realized the potential of this beautiful and intimate work and sent the audience home remembering many of its exquisite passages.

Friday's program used more players and offered a first half consisting of works featuring the wind players of the orchestra. The concert opened with a performance of Stravinsky's Symphonies of Wind Instruments, written in 1920. The work displayed the sharp rhythmic and slightly dissonant style of the Stravinsky of the younger years as he began to write in the new-classic style which has distinguished his works.

Stravinsky was followed by a first American performance of the composition "Pneuma" by Holliger. In this piece, written in 1970, the composer used the devices and sounds utilized by other present day composers — trombone players singing into the instrument, string and woodwind players playing clusters of sound of their own choosing, unusual percussion effects utilizing piano strings and a small electronic organ and episodes where the players mumbled, shouted and hissed! Mr. Bernstein conducted from a huge score which required two music stands and busily cued in and signaled the melodicas, organ, drums and other instruments. The piece finally built up to a large crash and a shout which brought an end the cacophonous sounds.

The evening concluded with a return to 19th century romanticism via a very winning performance of the Brahms violin concerto.

THE GREAT PROFILE — Jack Cassidy, left, is Hollywood's choice to portray the famed John Barrymore, right, matinee idol of the '20s and '30s who died in 1942.

Cassidy will portray Barrymore in the film biography of comedian W. C. Fields. The movie, "W. C. Fields and Me," is now in production in Hollywood.

TV producer plays part-time sheriff

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Rick Rosner, who produced NBC's hit movie, "Sky Heist," knows whereof he produces. That film was about the work of Los Angeles County's Aero Bureau, part of the sheriff's department. And Rosner is a reserve deputy sheriff for the County.

He may be the only TV producer who works one eight-hour shift a week as a deputy sheriff. (He makes $1 a year — "but nothing is deducted from that.")

"Sky Heist," which dealt with an attempt to commit a big robbery using helicopters, was a pilot for a series. It didn't make it — but Rosner thinks it should have.

"It was designed for the early evening family hour," he says. "But NBC decided that any show that had men in uniforms carrying guns couldn't be used as a family show — even though it wasn't a violent show."

Rosner's career as a reserve deputy sheriff began when he produced Steve Allen's old talk show. One guest was a sheriff who talked about rescue divers and talked Rosner into taking scuba-diving training with them. After that, they talked him into reserve training.

In his five years as a reserve deputy sheriff, he's had a few adventures. One was assisting at the birth of a baby who is now growing up with the name Rosner Ballard "although all I actually did was call out for boiling water."

Another time he responded to a call at an apartment house where a woman was locked out with a sick child inside. All attempts to open the door failed.

"My partner broke his foot trying to kick the door down," he says, "and my sergeant shattered the butt of his pistol trying to break a window. So I did what I have long wanted to do — I shot the door off."

"But it wasn't as simple as it is in the movies. In this case, the door blew off the hinges, the wall crumbled and all the furniture and lamps inside shattered. But the baby stopped crying."

Live shows popular

By STEPHEN FORD
Even in this era of manufactured entertainment — TV and movies — there's still a place for live shows.

I had a talk with Irvin Arthur, director of entertainment, and Burt Taylor, international director of club relations of the Playboy Clubs. With 22 clubs and hotels in the chain, and all of them featuring live entertainers, Arthur is probably one of the biggest buyers of entertainment in the country.

He says, last year, he spent more than $5 million on talent — "I bought so many different acts I can't even count them."

It will get bigger. Playboy is about to launch a program of concerts — Playboy Presents — starting in Los Angeles and going from there.

"There is a need for clubs," he says. "The public wants to get out. If we have a top attraction, our club is jammed. I think there is a hunger for live entertainment."

Taylor, a one-time performer and Arthur a former agent, spend a lot of their time scouting for talent to be booked into the clubs.

Ballet set for Redlands

Ballet International, of the U.S. International University, will present a program at the Redlands Bowl at 8:15 p.m. Friday. Admission is by good will offering.

Starlite Patio Theater to offer VCT's 'Roar'

The Starlite Patio Theater at the Montclair Civic Center will offer a free presentation of the Valley Community Theater musical, "The Roar of the Greasepaint, the Smell of the Crowd," at 8:15 p.m. July 22.

The Anthony Newley-Leslie Bricusse show is staged by the VCTeens, the youth wing of the Pomona community theater. The production is one of the Starlite Patio Series offered free by the Montclair Recreation Department.

The musical, first produced in 1966, has no plot. It is a series of routines without forward action. It is the "game of life." Highly relevant in today's society, it warns that if mankind doesn't stop seeing the present as a place from which to look forward to the future, the future's promise will remain only a promise.

In the cast are David Gassner, Roger Castellano, Chris Michalski, Tom Cross, Dee Dee Jernigan, John Richardson, Carol Spencer, Tracy McMillion, Jackie Nagay, Debbie Feldman, Steve Spencer, Patti Gornik, Norman Gee and Karen Kehret.

Patti Doub of Montclair

is musical director, and Dee Dee Jernigan handles the choreography.
